

MacArthur Asserts Unbounded Faith In U. S. Victory

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Australia, March 23.—(AP)—With confidence and deep feeling, General Douglas MacArthur spent two hours today in giving news correspondents a complete account of the Pacific war situation.

Bataan Troops Send Pledge To MacArthur

Defenders Brace for All-Out Assault as Lull Returns.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP)—An apparent lull returned to the Philippine fighting front today after two days of intensive Japanese attacks which prompted the defenders to brace for a full-scale enemy offensive.

From Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright came no further reports of aggressive enemy patrol attacks or siege hammering of the Manila bay forts following his disregard for a demand that American-Filipino defenders surrender "or suffer the consequences."

Official observers were without an explanation but noted that General Wainwright had not revised the report he made Saturday that a renewed assault on the Bataan peninsula positions appeared probable.

The War Department announced meanwhile that the troops on Bataan had sent to General Douglas MacArthur in Australia a pledge to carry on the fight with the same courage and zeal they showed under his personal command. It was a message of congratulation on his safe arrival in Australia to assume supreme command in the South Pacific.

In it, a communique said, the Bataan fighters expressed their confidence that "troops of the United Nations in Australia and the Philippines would triumph over the aggressor."

FROM THE GENERAL.—President Roosevelt got a war trophy yesterday. It was a gift to his commander-in-chief from General Douglas MacArthur. Brought to Mr. Roosevelt by Francis B. Sayre, American high commissioner to the Philippines, the saber once belonged to a Japanese general who was killed in the fighting in the Philippines. Sayre lunched with the President who called him back to this country to report. How he evaded the Japs remained a secret.

Bataan Relief Seen as Long Job by Sayre

Spirit of Philippine Defenders Is Tremendous, He Says.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP)—Francis B. Sayre, Philippine high commissioner, reported today that the spirit of the American and Filipino soldiers battling on Bataan peninsula was "perfectly tremendous" and that they were "fighting the Japanese at every turn whenever they get the chance."

"Fellows come in to the hospital here," he told a press conference, "and the first question they ask is 'when can I get back to the front?'"

Their eventual reinforcement or relief he viewed as "a long job, observing that to get supplies or men to Bataan 'we shall have to fight them up from Australia' and pointing to the vast difficulties of the undertaking. But he promised that "Americans are going to defend the Philippines to the last ditch."

Concern Expressed. He estimated, in reply to a question, that less than half the area of the Philippines was actually in the hands of Japanese troops but emphasized that this was only a guess because in most places it was impossible to draw a line between occupied and unoccupied areas.

Sayre expressed grave concern over the food supplies of the 1,500 to 2,000 Americans and British he estimated were held by the Japanese in Manila since they were dependent upon imported foodstuffs and imports had been cut off.

He plans to confer with the state department and the Red Cross on the possibility of sending a relief ship to Manila to take food to the civilians and possibly bring out the sick and wounded. The civilians are being held in Santo Tomas University there.

Brings Saber. Sayre, who escaped from Manila to Corregidor and had been there until recently, arrived in Honolulu last week and came here today bringing to President Roosevelt the saber of a dead Japanese army officer as a personal gift from General Douglas MacArthur.

Securities in the Philippines were taken out of the islands before the invaders could seize them, Sayre said.

"Like rats in a tunnel," was his description of life at Corregidor, which had been under heavy shelling. He related that it is seldom possible to leave the rocky caves for fresh air because of the shell-fire and that the Americans there prefer to stay on Bataan peninsula proper despite the primitive living facilities of the open countryside and the danger of air raids.

Clarke Legislator Resigns, Enters Army. Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., March 23.—Lieutenant L. Olin Price Jr., who was recently called to active duty by the Army, has tendered his resignation as a member of the general assembly to Governor Talmadge.

Lieutenant Price was elected one of Clarke's two representatives to the general assembly two years ago and was a member of a number of committees.

Among the speakers will be Lieutenant Commander Henry Bell Hodgins, chaplain of the Navy Air Base and former rector of Christ church, Pensacola, Fla.; Glenn Rainey, Georgia Tech professor; Lucy Randolph Mason, labor leader, and W. J. Cordes, prominent attorney, and the Rev. Robert L. Crandall, canon of the Cathedral of St. Philip.

The President also nominated Brigadier General Alexander Vandergift, 55, of Washington, commanding general of infantry troops of the First Marine Division, Fleet Marine Force, New River, N. C., for a similar rank.

Captain Monroe Kelly, U. S. N., of Williamsburg, Va., was nominated to be a rear admiral. The last available report on Kelly's assignment was that he had been given a command at sea.

Cripps Starts Drive To Unify India's Defense

'No Time To Lose,' Britain's Emissary Declares in New Delhi.

NEW DELHI, India, March 23.—(AP)—Britain's emissary, Sir Stafford Cripps, arriving as the "great friend" of an India surprisingly become the frontier with the Axis, began today a whirlwind campaign to unify the country's discordant millions on a program of freedom and self-defense.

Sir Stafford came by plane from Karachi and in a few polished but pungent statements to a press conference lost no time in making clear that he considered his mission urgent.

Explaining that he planned to stay but two weeks, he said he hoped that his conference with an extraordinary variety of Indian leadership would bring "quick decisions" which would permit the Indian people to "associate themselves fully and freely, not only with Great Britain and the other dominions, but also with our great Allies, Russia, China and the United States... to preserve the liberty of the people of the world."

He said he had come "to set out finally and with precision the practical steps which His Majesty's government propose as a method of fulfilling their past promises of self-government to the Indian people."

"There is no time to lose and no time for long discussions," he declared.

"No real major, fundamental change can be made" in the proposals which he has brought, he said in reply to questions.

And by way of emphasis, he added, "there could be no adverse effect in the English parliament on these conclusions."

Although Sir Stafford did not outline the proposals, the fact that he spoke of India associating herself "freely and fully" with the United Nations pointed to some immediate, transitory form of self-government, as a means of fulfilling "past promises" of dominion status after the war.

Although there was widespread belief in India that Cripps' visit had a chance of success, observers noted these two disturbing developments:

Mohandas K. Gandhi, spiritual leader of the Congress party, advocated in his paper that the government give assurance that it would not try to apply the scorched earth policy in event India is invaded.

And the council of the United Provinces Congress party let it be known that in its view nothing but complete, immediate independence would be satisfactory.

Fifth Columnists Seen as Problem. LONDON, March 23.—(AP)—Qualified sources expressed the belief tonight that Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's peace-maker in India, had been instructed to determine how well the Congress party, with or without the full cooperation of other political groups, could muster native opposition to a Japanese invasion.

Quelling of possible Fifth Column uprisings such as hand-capped the fighting men in Burma coarsely could play an important part in British strategy.

Followers of the Congress party, leading advocates of independence, include many believers in non-violence who might not fight even if they gained Indian independence.

Mohandas K. Gandhi, whose voice still is most influential in the party, might have the power to convert passive resistance into a weapon to help instead of hindering Britain's defense of the country.

However, dispatches from India which said he was opposing application of the scorched policy in event of invasion offered scant encouragement to such hope.

Indian quarters in London were confident that Cripps and the war cabinet want to know how far the more moderate elements would be willing to go in helping ferret out and suppress the underground revolutionary followers of Subhas Chandra Bose, a former left-wing leader of the Congress party.

Although Bose is in exile somewhere in the Axis countries, Indian quarters here said he has a strong body of fanatical followers in eastern Bengal, an area which is likely to be an early Japanese objective.

Chittagong, in Bengal, is the nearest port which affords a possible overland connection with Mandalay and the Burma road, and offers a tempting target to the Japanese, especially since they could march north from there and seize the area through which China's projected Assam road would be opened.

Defense Workers Warned About Gift

The Fulton county defense committee has asked persons engaged in defense work not to accept any gifts, money or thing of value for any service rendered.

"Presentation of gifts or awards to instructors or other volunteer workers, and the collection of contributions from individuals for this purpose should be discouraged," Charles J. Currie, chairman, stated in a letter to zone chairmen and chiefs of service.

Athens Leader Backed to Head National D.A.R.

Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge Indorsed at State Convention.

Macon, Ga., March 23.—Members of the state executive board, Georgia society, Daughters of the American Revolution, in session here today, unanimously indorsed Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, of Athens, as candidate for president general, N. S. D. A. R. Mrs. Talmadge has been a leader in D. A. R. activities for years and is president of the National Officers' Club.

The annual conference of the Georgia Daughters will be held today with Mrs. Thomas Mell, of Atlanta, state regent, presiding. The session closes Wednesday with election of state officers.

Mrs. Talmadge's indorsement by the Georgia Daughters will be voted upon at the national congress of the D. A. R. to be held next Monday in Chicago. Due to war conditions, the Daughters were forced to cancel plans for meeting in Washington, as has been the custom for many years.

China Supplies Sufficient for 30 to 40 Months

Substitute Burma Road Yet Incomplete, U. S. Inspector Says.

NEW YORK, March 23.—China now has enough supplies stored away in its mountains to last at least 30 to 40 months, a Red Cross representative said today upon arrival from the front aboard a U. S. Navy transport.

Dr. John Earl Baker, of Mill Valley, Cal., who said he was assigned to the Burma road as an inspector by the U. S. government and the Red Cross, was among 674 passengers on the ship, which left Singapore about 30 days ago carrying 505 evacuees. "Somewhere in the Pacific" the boat picked up 82 British seamen and 87 East African seamen from two torpedoed vessels.

Dr. Baker said the storage region in the mountains was about 150 miles from Rangoon and described the supplies as including 9,000 tons of gasoline, 6,000 tons of ammunition and 200,000 tons of general supplies and materials.

Hill tribes helped move the supplies, Dr. Baker added, declaring they worked "by means of basket, mattocks and hand."

He said the substitute Burma road was still incomplete because most of the work was being done by hand, but that he believed parts of it had now been opened.

A shortage of drivers and mechanics did much to slow progress on the road, he said.

Mrs. Dorothy Colbert, 45, a British subject, said the Japanese dropped pamphlets on Malay during the Singapore drive warning the soldiers and populace that captured soldiers "would be placed in a leper colony, gasoline poured over the colony and the colony set afire."

BRITISH DEFENSE FUND. LONDON, March 23.—(AP)—A military parade moved through London's twisting streets today in the warships' week campaign to raise $500,000,000 in war savings for naval construction. Spitfires and a squadron of bombers flew low over the marching men, drowning out at times the martial music of military bands. Collections by noon totaled $132,000,000.

Small Enterprises Offered RFC Help

M. E. Everett, manager of the loan agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Atlanta, has returned from a conference in Washington with directors of the corporation.

He said the RFC solicits the cooperation of banks throughout the nation in making effective the program to spread war production orders among small enterprises. An applicant, he said, should first apply to his own bank. If the bank is unable to provide the necessary credit it should assist the applicant to arrange a loan through the RFC.

New Corps Area Chief Prefers South as Home

Major General and Mrs. Bryden 'Know' They'll Like People Here.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Fate has a peculiar way of shifting people around and it doesn't except the Army.

Take the case of Major General and Mrs. William Bryden.

General Bryden is the new commander of the Fourth Corps Area.

Several years ago, while General and Mrs. Bryden were stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., their first tour of duty in the south, they were so charmed by the southland that they made up their minds that when they retired, they would establish a home somewhere in the sunny south.

"And now here we are, right in the heart of the southland," Mrs. Bryden said yesterday afternoon. "And Will," (her favorite name for General Bryden), "has no thoughts of retiring—at least not until after the war."

Knows People Here.

"I just know I am going to like it here, and we will like the people. We have been in the Army so long that we always know someone on a new station. It happens we know quite a few of those stationed here, and as soon as we can, we will get acquainted with everyone."

"Will has been so busy at the office that he has not had time to help me do anything around the house. Moving into a new place always has its complications and I need him to advise me and to help me plan our living quarters. But, in two days I have about given up hope, for he has been leaving for the office early in the morning and it is always late when he returns."

But despite that, the general is a great family man and soon after his arrival at his quarters last night inquired after his young grandson and namesake, William Bryden Schoephoester. The latter's parents are Marian Bryden Schoephoester and the late Lieutenant M. W. Schoephoester, of the Air Corps. Mrs. Schoephoester and the baby are living with General and Mrs. Bryden at Fort McPherson.

Visited in 1935.

Back in 1935 Mrs. Bryden, then in boarding school, slipped away for a visit to her father, Major General T. H. Barry, who commanded the Fourth Corps Area here for a short time.

"It was a brief visit here and I just don't count it as coming home for I was here for such a short time," she said, "but now that I am really here I expect to make it my home in more ways than one."

When the general was an instructor at West Point and Major General Barry was superintendent, the couple met and soon afterwards were married. In addition to their daughter now living with them, they have another daughter, Mrs. Alexander Day Surles, wife of Captain Surles of the Armored Forces stationed at Camp Chaffee, Ark. The Surles have two children, Barbara and Tommy.

Questioned concerning her hobbies, Mrs. Bryden admits that she has none, although she used to ride a great deal.

The General's Hobby.

"The general has a hobby, however," said the Army matron. "It is the Army. The Army has been his career since he first decided he wanted to enter West Point. He entered by examination and he has had an absorbing interest in anything concerning the Army. It is his whole life."

When she lived in Washington, Mrs. Bryden was chairman of the Surgical Dressing Unit of the Army Branch of the Red Cross. There was a weight of responsibility placed upon her slim but steady shoulders for she had six supervisors working under her and in her branch alone there were from 40 to 80 women in the unit each day. She also worked as a placement aide in the Civilian Volunteer Bureau.

The general and his family will meet the other officers and wives at the post when, according to Army custom, they are officially at home.

Labor, Bosses Pledge All-Out War Work Here

200 Attend Conference, Promise Speedup on War Tools.

Enthusiastic support by management and labor was pledged to the War Production Board's "speed-up" program yesterday at a conference at the Henry Grady hotel.

Attendance was about 200, with labor far more heavily represented than management. It was brought out that labor is organized and has its spokesmen, while few executives felt themselves authorized to speak for management beyond the field of their own plants.

In answer to that, Preston S. Arkwright, chairman of the conference, declared himself qualified to speak for the Georgia Manufacturers' Association in pledging its full support of the greater production movement.

Conducting the meeting were Chairman Arkwright; Thomas H. Daniel, Atlanta; John L. Beckham, Oklawaha City, and Alexander Kallenbach, Philadelphia, all representing the War Production Board.

Production Plan.

A plan for bringing about greater production was presented by WPA in the form of a pamphlet. It outlined the duties of labor management committees, representing employers and employees, and provided that if workers belong to a labor union the union representatives shall constitute the labor half of the joint committee. It provides that committees shall maintain contact with the Production Drive headquarters in Washington.

At the close of the conference, lasting about two hours, a resolution offered by Chairman Arkwright was adopted by a rising vote. It provided that:

"The representatives of management and labor assembled in this conference do hereby resolve, and dedicate themselves wholeheartedly to the immediate task of producing more tools of war for the men on the battlelines. We do here and now determine that we will put our shoulders to the wheel without thought of our personal desires, to get more and still more tools of war into the hands of our fighting men."

Southern Co-operation.

"Southern management and southern labor makes this solemn pledge to General MacArthur and to the soldiers and sailors in the field and on the sea: We shall not falter, we shall not fail. The tools of war that we can make will be made with the utmost speed. The quotas assigned us by the War Production Board shall be met and exceeded by our united effort, and be it further resolved: That copies of this resolution be forwarded to President Roosevelt and Donald M. Nelson."

Numerous representatives of the American Federation of Labor, the CIO and individual unions offered suggestions. They agreed on two fundamental points—that virtually complete co-operation exists all over the south between management and labor, with each equally determined to go "all out" for victory through war production; and that slowing up of production is due, not to lack of labor or willingness of labor, but to lack of materials.

Lack of Materials.

It was brought out that many plants are operating only four or five days a week because of failure to obtain necessary supplies and materials. A former employee of a shut-down automobile plant in Atlanta made a plea for work for the 1,500 employees thrown out of jobs. There was no immediate answer to that, one of the committee explained, but WPB hoped to find a way to convert many such closed plants into war production soon.

A manufacturer of amphibian tanks who preferred his address be not revealed, complained he depended for parts upon 500 subcontractors scattered all over the nation. He wanted to know how to get them speeded up. Beckham said that would be WPB's job and it would make every effort to get better results.

Few Employers.

Only a few employers, managers of small plants, were represented. But there were many representatives of organized labor, all of whom gave hearty endorsement to the great production movement. Nobody discussed the 40-hour week or wages. The conference was thoroughly harmonious.

Among the speakers who pledged wholehearted co-operation were: Virlyn Booth, manager WPB of Georgia; Joseph K. Gaither, sub-regional director of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, affiliated with CIO; Dewey L. Johnson, president Georgia Federation of Labor, and George L. Goode, southeastern representative of the American Federation of Labor. The conference adjourned after the adoption of the resolutions.

Originator of Dinner Dancing In Restaurants Dies in N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP)—Jacques Bustanoby, 69, last of New York's famous turn-of-the-century restaurateurs, died yesterday, and his passing recalled for many New Yorkers the dead days of a golden era.

Bustanoby, who started his career as a waiter shortly after he immigrated from France, was considered a daring young man in the prewar days.

He introduced dinner dancing in his famous restaurant, the Beaux Arts, situated on 39th street, and so shocked a group of moralists they filed suit to force him to close his doors. The suit was defended successfully by a rising young lawyer of the day, Jimmy Walker, later New York's mayor.

Hires Valentino.
Bustanoby hired Rudolph Valentino as a dancing instructor at $10 a week to teach his patrons that new-fangled dance, the tango.

He started "artists' night," forerunner of modern celebrity nights, with Nora Bayes singing her "Shine On, Harvest Moon," with Blanche Ring chanting "Rings on My Fingers, Bells on My Toes . . ."; with Fritz Scheff contributing an unforgettable "Kiss Me Again."

He started the first American sidewalk cafe in another of his restaurants, the Cafe de la Paix.

FDR Property In State Given To Foundation

President Retains 'Little White House' Only at Warm Springs.

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP)—All President Roosevelt's property in Georgia except the "Little White House" has been deeded to the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis, Basil O'Connor announced today.

O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said the gift included farm lands, building, equipment and livestock. Mr. Roosevelt has owned the property for several years.

At one time, Mr. Roosevelt had about 3,000 acres under cultivation and pasturage. Recently there were several hundred head of livestock. Resident managers have cared for the farm, reporting periodically to Mr. Roosevelt.

One of Mr. Roosevelt's delights on his visits to Warm Springs was to cruise over to his farmland driving his own car and chat about the crops.

The "Little White House" which Mr. Roosevelt is retaining is a small house situated on the side of Pine mountain above the foundation buildings. He has lived there on occasions for a score of years because it is handy to the baths and swimming pool in which Mr. Roosevelt early took treatment in his battle to regain health.

O'Connor declined to discuss details of the property transaction at the White House also would disclose nothing further.

Georgia Flyer Killed in Texas

ODESSA, Texas, March 23.—(AP)—Four flyers from the Midland Army flying school were killed today in the crash of their plane at a bombing practice target field 40 miles from the school.

Victims were two flying officers and two cadets. They were Second Lieutenant William M. Bolton from Griffin, Ga., and Robert W. Ingle, of Matamoras, Ill., and Cadet William Talmadge Halstead Jr., of Lake City, Fla., and Oliver R. Harja, of Ironwood, Mich.

They were the field's first casualties, and the cadets were members of the school's second class.

Channel Air War Flares Up Again

ON THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF ENGLAND, March 23.—(AP)—The air war over the Channel flared up again tonight as German raiders stabbed at coastal areas in the south and southeast of England by moonlight.

A stick of bombs caused considerable damage and some casualties in one town on the southeast coast as one group of dive bombers came in for a swift attack. Many of the bombs landed on a business section.

There was a sharp, five-minute attack on another area.

The German raids followed a foray by British fighters on the French coast earlier in the day.

Here's how I helped relieve distress with Powolin

"I Believe It My Christian Duty to Tell What Powolin Did for Me," States Rev. Sims.

C. H. Sims, beloved Baptist minister, Route 1, Spartanburg, S. C., declares:

"No one can appreciate Powolin as I do until he has suffered as I have and tried this splendid medicine. No matter what I ate, food would sour and cause gas and bloating that made me feel I could hardly get my breath. My head ached something awful and the wastes of stubborn constipation made me feel so aching, sluggish and worthless I sometimes felt I hardly had energy left to go through with a sermon. My sleep was so disturbed, morning found me let down and feeling so sluggish and miserable I dreaded the day's activities.

"I was discouraged and didn't know where to turn for relief until my sister-in-law told me of what splendid relief Powolin gave her. Now, I can add my endorsement to this good medicine, for I deem it my Christian duty to tell others about it. I am relieved of the misery and distress that plagued me, do not have to take harsh laxatives and am happy to recommend Powolin as the best medicine I ever had in my home."

Nelson Warns Labor, Bosses To Speed Output

week, speeding up production and eliminating industrial graft and excess profits.

Representative Coffee, Democrat, Nebraska, told his colleagues that if the present congress refused to pass labor legislation "you may be assured an aroused public will send a congress here that will take the necessary action."

People Are Aroused. "The people of this nation," he added, "are aroused because the labor racketeers are permitted to take advantage of the national emergency to force closed shop agreements and other unjustifiable demands on industries engaged in war production."

To these protests, Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, the majority leader, replied that "an awful lot of misinformation" had been circulated. He commented that some seemed to believe a laborer should make the same sacrifices as a soldier receiving $21 a month and declared: "I think it is one of the most erroneous things to compare a man who is working with a man in the Army at $21 a month. The man in civilian life has the greater responsibility."

Record Defended. Chairman Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, of the House Labor Committee, defended labor's war production record and accused "certain groups" of seeking to "breed disunity . . . and to play the game that Hitler wants to play."

In a brief speech in the house, Mrs. Norton blamed much of the present agitation for suspension of the 40-hour week on those she said always had opposed social gains for the working man.

In the senate, there was talk from Senator Herring, Democrat, Iowa, and others of attempting to force from the Labor Committee to floor consideration a bill passed by the house last year outlawing strikes in arms industries. Senator Bilbo, Democrat, Mississippi, introduced a bill to require registration of all persons 18 years of age or older for war work. He would let the President order them to work and fix their rate of pay.

He said this would curb "labor racketeers" and "sound the death knell for a luxury-softered era of playboys and glamor girls."

40-Hour Week. While opposing extra pay for Sunday or holiday work which was not overtime, Nelson indicated that he thought the 40-hour week should be retained with provision for pay at extra rates for work in excess of 40 hours. The wage-hour law requires time and one-half pay for such overtime.

The double pay for work on a Sunday or holiday, even though it falls within a 40-hour weekly work period, has been a point given great emphasis by critics of the present labor situation. It is required by many union contracts drawn in peacetime when the plants expected, as a usual thing, to shut down on Sundays and holidays. Currently, the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union is demanding a wartime contract of that nature from General Motors Corporation.

Nelson also told the union men he opposed any efforts to use the war situation to "whittle down labor's rights and privileges" and declared none of its "essential rights" should be taken away "unless the needs of the country for victory demand it."

Guthrie Helped By Departure, Officials Say

WPB Efficiency Has Been Improved, Committee Told.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP)—Two War Production Board officials, whose actions had been criticized by Robert R. Guthrie following his resignation from a WPB executive post March 14, told a House Military Subcommittee today that Guthrie's departure improved WPB efficiency.

They were J. A. Rice, dollar-a-year textile consultant in the division of purchases, and Kenneth Marriner, a wool consultant who said his application to be changed from a noncompensatory status to that of dollar-a-year man "is in the process of being accepted."

Guthrie had testified that both Rice and Marriner had disagreed with his wool and textile conservation program and had been factors in his decision to resign as head of the clothing, textiles and leather goods branch.

Change Admitted. "I don't question for one moment Guthrie's desire 'to help the war effort,'" Rice told the committee investigating circumstances of the resignation. "I do think that differences of opinion were creating difficulties."

These differences, he added, did not involve any question "of good faith" and to his knowledge did not impede the war effort.

Asked whether the situation had changed since Guthrie left, Marriner said: "It's like the sunshine after it's been raining."

"As far as I am concerned, the case can rest," interposed Representative Fenton, Republican, Pennsylvania.

Working Smoothly. Rice said there had been "a great deal of dissatisfaction on the part of the commodity men" in Guthrie's branch and "a great deal of difference of opinion" on matters of policy. Guthrie's resignation, he added, eliminated these differences and the textile branch "is working smoothly today."

Both Rice and Marriner told the committee they believed there was no immediate cause for alarm over the wool situation, but Rice explained he believed conservation, through blending reclaimed wool with new wool for civilian goods, was necessary. Rice also opposed stockpiling of nylon at the

Nothing Subversive About Him, He Just Knew His War Maps

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., March 23.—(AP)—Twenty-one-year-old Joseph Citro's comprehensive knowledge of war developments brought him a visit from Army intelligence officers.

The Army representatives learned to their amazement the youth's keen grasp of a chaotic world situation was not acquired subversively but simply through assiduous reading of daily newspapers. He had the movements of the armies of the world on a nine-by-four-foot homemade map.

Citro wrote to a soldier cousin stationed in Iceland several weeks ago and included pictures of his map and much information about the war.

An alert censor turned the letter and its contents over to the intelligence service.

Before the Army officers left Citro they offered to recommend him for the Signal Corps if he is called in the draft.

present time because of technical difficulties still to be worked out in the industry.

No Wool Shortage. Marriner asserted there positively was no wool shortage, and said the wool industry could continue at its present rates of production until the end of 1944 with its worsted output and until the end of 1943 with its woolen output "without another pound of wool being imported into this country."

Marriner acknowledged that he had opposed mandatory industry-wide wool blending, as recommended by Guthrie, until the mills could submit programs requested by April 30.

"There are many manufacturers who have not had any experience in blending and who would find it very difficult to adapt their machinery to a blanket industry-wide mandatory blending program," Marriner explained.

"There are others who have had considerable experience along these lines. The small allotment of civilian wool is going to compel blending almost automatically in a great many cases. My recommendation was that the matter should be handled on a case by case basis, and that when we found a mill that was not cooperating we should work on it."

Marriner said he knew of no cases in which, as Guthrie had complained, dollar-a-year men found it difficult to subordinate their private business interests to the general interest.

Boys' High Student Wins Vanderbilt Scholarship

David L. Hambrick, Boys' High student, has been awarded a $300 prize scholarship at Vanderbilt University for the 1942-43 session, the University Committee on Scholarships announced yesterday at Nashville.

The only other Georgian receiving a scholarship was Robert G. Norton, of Brunswick.

Hambrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Hambrick, of College Park, is high in scholarship and a member of the Boys' High basketball team.

Mr. Southernland had been a resident of Elizabeth for 18 years, was a member of the Baptist church and came to Cobb county from Pickens county. He was employed by the Georgia Marble Company for 10 years, until retirement nine years ago.

Surviving are his wife, the former Margaret Duncan; daughter, Mrs. Homer Bottoms, of Marietta; two sons, Ridgeley Southernland, of Marietta, and Buren Southernland, of Irving, Texas; one sister, Mrs. Warner Fricks, of Cumming; two brothers, John Southernland, of Ball Ground, and Lum Southernland, of Talking Rock.

OPA Clamps Price Ceilings on Eight 'Scarcity' Articles

10 Per Cent of Georgians To Study First Aid

Demand for Red Cross Training Swamps Chapters.

The extent to which Georgians are ready to take the task of emergency care of the injured in case of an air raid or other public calamity was revealed yesterday in an report by A. W. Cantwell, director of first aid, water safety and accident prevention of the eastern area of the American Red Cross.

Before the program undertaken by the Red Cross and the Office of Civilian Defense is completed, he said, a minimum of 10 per cent of the entire population of the state will be trained in first aid.

Since December 7, Cantwell reported, the demand for first aid training had grown to such proportions that most local Red Cross chapters have had to establish a priority system providing training for air raid wardens first, teachers and others working with children second. Next came auxiliary policemen and firemen, stretcher bearers, industrial groups and the general public.

Cantwell reported a similar expansion of Red Cross work in home nursing, production, motor corps and nurses' aides.

To meet the demand for instructors, the Red Cross now has an instructor training program under way throughout Georgia. Graduates of these courses will take over advanced first aid classes being planned by local chapters. In addition, the Red Cross contemplates organization of trucking company, highway department employees and others into first aid mobile units, Cantwell said.

NYA Project Is Started On State Farm

Defense Residential Unit To Be Established at Milledgeville.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 23.—Work of remodeling and repairing buildings at the old state prison farm for use as a National Youth Administration residential defense project formally began today.

The work, which is being done by NYA boys from this area, is under the direction of W. D. Frazer, engineer. Between 20 and 40 youths will be employed.

Present plans call for utilization of the old tubercular sanitarium only in the project, Boisfeuillet Jones, state NYA director, said, and three to six months will be required to complete work.

When finished, the project will house between 100 and 160 students. While receiving work experience here, the youths will be paid $30 per month, $20 of which will be deducted for subsistence.

The exact type of training to be given has not yet been definitely determined, Jones said, explaining the constantly changing war picture might cause a last-minute shift in plans.

Youths employed in construction activities will be paid $16.80 per month, the regular NYA salary for work of this type.

Preliminary work on the project has been in progress for more than a year, the administrator said, but inability to iron out all technicalities delayed start of construction until now.

The Baldwin county board of education is co-operating with the NYA in this project.

Peterson Introduces Bill To End 40-Hour Week

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP) Representative Peterson, Democrat, Georgia, introduced today a bill suspending the 40-hour week in war industries during the war. Among other measures introduced were these by representatives:

Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, a bill directing the Disaster Loan Corporation to make available immediately loans and grants up to $10,000,000 to relieve tornado-stricken areas in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Whelchel, Democrat, Georgia, to increase compensation of privates, sergeants and corporals in the armed forces—privates' pay would be increased from $21-$30 a month to $42-$48.

The price action, broadest yet taken by OPA, covered the principal items whose manufacture has been ordered halted or curtailed in order to convert the industries to war production and conserve critical materials.

It was OPA's greatest incursion into the field of retail price control. Moreover, the orders also set maximum prices on wholesale marketing and in two instances—vacuum cleaners and typewriters—lifts were put on manufacturers' prices.

The ceilings apply only to new articles, not to used ones. On six of the articles—typewriters, domestic washing machines, ironing machines, phonographs, radio receiving sets and domestic heating and cooking stoves and ranges—the price decrees were 60-day "temporary orders" pegging prices at the level of last Thursday, March 19.

The two permanent price ceilings applied to household vacuum cleaners and attachments and to household mechanical refrigerators. In these instances the ceilings were fixed at the manufacturers' recommended retail price lists.

Six American Ballad Singers Perform Here

Live Up to Advance Press Notices in Presentation.

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY.

Six young singers, three in sweeping, white evening gowns and as many in tux, followed the leader, Elie Siegmeyer, out on the stage of the Glenn Memorial auditorium at Emory University last night. They bowed formally and sat down around a table—a long, lean table just the proper size. The leader dealt out scores. And they went to singing.

The American Ballad Singers, upon whom the press in 21 states this season, and nearly as many last, have poured out praise, are refreshingly good. Something new under the sun, is their interpretation of the homely subject matter which is also unusual—the result of Siegmeyer's research and ingenuity.

Sing Anything.

They sit around this table and when the leader nods his head, Ruth Fremont, a pretty brunette with an appealing soprano voice hums the pitch, and they are off. They sing anything from old Spanish Mission chants to the "shouts" of the strawberry peddlers in Brooklyn.

Tom Edwards, the baritone, whose large, brilliant voice seemed likely to overflow the hall, sang "Shine On," the old patent medicine man's come-on to his prospects, while five other singers hummed his accompaniment. And Rebekah Crawford, in her smooth, low contralto, was forced to endure a ditty that all children sing when playing a favorite game—"Here Come Three Merchants."

"Peg and Awl."

Then Tom Edwards, the tenor, proved he, too, had an appealing voice, singing about a cobbler who could not compete with the shoe machine. It was called "Peg and Awl." Earl Waldo, the bass, and as good a comedian as the contralto, did his share in "Pinnegan's Wake," while Helen Yorke, the second soprano, was most rewarding in a song of the German refugees from persecution, called "Schlof Bobbel."

It was an interesting performance, which would have enthused a capacity audience, as it did the handful that came. The concert was the next to last on the Emory Student Lecture Series, and unfortunately was scheduled during spring vacation. Cornelia Otis Skinner, with her famous character sketches, will be the final presentation on the series for this season when she appears in the Glenn Memorial auditorium April 15.

Man Is Found Shot to Death In Automobile

Pistol Lay in Foot of Car of J. A. M. Warr.

J. A. M. (Buddy) Warr, 54, of Route 2, College Park, was found shot to death yesterday in an automobile parked on the Welcome road, near Red Oak, County Policemen C. T. Speir and G. C. Bentley reported.

A pistol lay in the foot of the car, the officers said. An inquest will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the funeral home of A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

He served as prison guard at the Stonewall camp for five years. Survivors include his wife; a son, Ray; three sisters, Mrs. John Morrow, Mrs. J. W. Caldwell and Mrs. C. O. Goddard; a brother, J. P. Warr, and two grandchildren.

Funeral plans will be announced by A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

Italian Motorship Is Believed Sunk

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP)—

Reports reaching here from marine sources in England said today that the 13,098-ton Italian liner Victoria—a fast motorship and one of the prides of the prewar Italian merchant marine—had been shored with British aerial torpedoes and "undoubtedly sunk."

The reports said British planes surprised the sleek vessel near Tripoli and scored direct hits with torpedoes and bombs. She was burning fiercely when the planes sped away, it was said.

The Victoria, built in 1931 at Trieste, was well known in the Italian service to Shanghai, Singapore, Bombay and Colombo. She had been used recently to supply Axis forces in Libya.

Fire Sweeps Muscogee Draft Board Office

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 23.—

(AP)—Reholding of the third selective service registration in Muscogee county may be necessary because of a fire which swept the offices of draft board No. 1 last night.

Most of the board's records, said Board Chairman W. J. Fielder, were in steel filing cabinets, or piled on desks. None was in fire-proof vaults, he said.

Building Owner J. E. Flowers declined to estimate the damage to the four-story building, but said the insurance he carried probably was insufficient to cover the loss.

11 Axis Ships Sunk in Daring British Attacks

Submarines Go Into Action in Sight of Italian Coast.

LONDON, March 23.—(AP)—British submarines have destroyed two Italian submarines, one troopship and eight other transports within view of humiliated Fascists on the shores of Italy and Albania, the admiralty announced today even while Axis forces were striking with indifferent success at a British convoy elsewhere in the Mediterranean.

The largest individual haul for the four British submarines engaged was credited to Commander J. W. Linton, who sank six large schooners—one of them flying the Nazi flag—and a motorship jammed with troops. Disdaining the use of torpedoes, Linton surfaced his submarine and destroyed all seven vessels with gunfire.

(He was cited last year for sinking two Italian supply ships with his submarine Pandora.)

New Submarine Sunk. Another British submarine sank the brand-new 1,461-ton Italian submarine Ammiraglio Milla off Salo Point, Calabria, southern Italy, under the gaze of persons gathered on shore.

"While His Majesty's submarine was engaged in picking up survivors she was subjected to ineffectual machinegun fire from land," the admiralty reported.

The second Italian submarine, of the 778-ton Argonauta class, was torpedoed and sunk in the southern approaches to the Strait of Messina, which separate the Italian mainland from Sicily.

"An attempt to rescue survivors from the U-boat who were struggling in the water was interfered with by enemy aircraft and had to be abandoned," the admiralty said.

The same British submarine was credited with torpedoing and "almost certainly" sinking a large, strongly escorted Axis supply ship.

The fourth British submarine, penetrating to the Adriatic sea, used her deck gun to sink a small enemy supply ship then departed unscathed by the fire of Italian shore batteries in Albania.

British Convoy Attacked.

As if to build a backbone to this series of British successes, the Italian command reported that a British convoy sailing to Malta had suffered "repeated hits" from Axis torpedo planes and that Italian naval formations had overtaken and engaged the convoy in the

Haste With Which U.S. Soldiers Wed Australian Girls Criticized

BRISBANE, Australia, Tuesday, March 24.—(AP)—The wedding of more than 20 Australian girls to United States service men in the past few weeks has led to talk in some quarters of action to discourage the tendency to marry in haste.

Religious leaders are inclined to deprecate the marriages because of extremely brief courtships. American authorities, however, recognize soldier allotments for Australian wives.

Gulf of Sirte this very afternoon, inflicting further damage. (The Germans claimed their bombers sank one ship and damaged two in this convoy.)

It was stated reliably in London that no British ships had been sunk, although damage to some was acknowledged.

The Italians claimed the British convoy consisted of eight or 10 transports guarded by five to seven destroyers, but informed persons in London expressed doubts about any such large number of transports being sent to the Malta outpost.

Five Prisoners Begin 3d Day of Hunger Strike

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—

(AP)—Five convicts began the third day of a hunger strike in Eastern State penitentiary today as authorities investigated a riot over sugar rationing in which one prisoner was killed.

The strikers, who have refused food since Friday, sat quietly in their cells while prison trustees probed the disturbance which ended in the suffocation of Joseph Annecnski, 23, Saturday. He and others set fire to their mattresses in protest against curtailed sugar allotments. Coroner Herbert M. Goddard said.

Needed Legislation

Under the urgency of war production, management of industry is being urged by government to do many things which, under normal peacetime conditions, would not be considered.

Among these things, all designed to accelerate the speed of our manufacture of war equipment, are plant "combinations" and exchanges of information between different companies.

It so happens, however, that almost all of these "combinations" and information exchanges are strictly against the anti-trust statutes of federal law. In other words, government officials are calling upon industrial managers to break the law those same officials would, in normal times, be vigorous in upholding.

That such restrictive laws should be ignored for the benefit of the war effort, no one will deny. But the fact remains these same laws are upon the federal statute books and there is no legal protection against later prosecution of the industrialists who violate them, even though upon government urging, if the government, after the war is over, should decide to prosecute.

More promises by government officials that there will be no later prosecution are legally worthless. This has been decided more than once in supreme court rulings.

Thus it is self-evident that, in simple justice to men who are doing their utmost toward winning victory in the war, congress should promptly pass legislation which will be clear and unequivocal on this point. Laws must be enacted that will bar future punishing of industrial executives for deeds done solely in the war interest and at direct behest of the government or its representatives.

Bases in Russia

Russia is on the point of major victories all along the 2,000-mile front. But the nation's position is not good, yet. Hitler has been definitely weakened, but the advance bases generally remain in German hands, even if partially isolated. If Hitler's "war weather" comes before these bases have been captured, then the situation will change quickly.

Here is the general situation, the positions drawn both from official communications and neutral reports. On the Leningrad front the Germans have been driven back, but they still control the major key point of Schlusselburg, which anchors their whole line along the Baltic. Staraya Russa may be seized, which would afford the Russians one of these strong points and possibly force a withdrawal from Novgorod to the north of Lake Ilmen, which in turn might enable isolation or capture of Schlusselburg.

On the central front the Germans hold their spearhead aimed at Moscow—Vyazma. Other strong points along which the German line almost automatically would stabilize in the spring are Orel and Kursk.

To the south, Kharkov, Dnepropetrovsk and Taganrog still are in the hands of the invaders, while in the Crimea only the Kerch peninsula, a gun aimed at the heart of the Caspian oil fields, and Sevastopol remain in Russian hands.

So, despite the Russian advances, the Germans still hold the bases necessary for a renewed drive in the spring. If the Russians can capture these bases, then the picture for the spring can be more cheering. If they do not, spring must bring some quick Russian withdrawals from behind these cities. The German losses naturally have weakened the striking power of the foe, but the key bases still are being held.

Whom Do They Represent?

There are, in congress, various "blobs" that claim to represent, and speak for, various special interest groups in the nation. There is, for instance, the "farm bloc," which professes to be constantly alert to carry out the wishes of the farmer. There is the "labor bloc," another powerful group, which is presumed to represent the interests and to carry out the wishes of organized labor.

Yet certain recent actions of both these blobs, when compared with the sentiment of the class-constituencies they pretend to represent, do not indicate that either actually reflects the views of those they so loudly assume to champion.

For instance, the farm bloc recently pushed through the lower house, as a rider to the regular agricultural appropriation bill, a clause forbidding the government to sell agricultural surpluses, held by the government, at less than parity prices. By so doing they handicapped, seriously, government efforts to prevent disastrous inflation of currency.

In enacting this piece of dangerous, class privilege legislation, did the "farm" bloc actually reflect the wishes of the farmers of the nation? Recent polls by that sensationally reliable barometer of public opinion, the Gallup Poll, indicate they did not. In a nationwide survey taken just before Pearl Harbor, the Gallup Poll asked whether the public approved rigid wage and price controls similar to those now operating in Canada. Farmers, on this question, voted almost two to one in favor of the controls, 59 per cent being in approval, with 31 per cent opposed and 10 per cent undecided.

A later poll, after United States entry into the war, asked the farmers the direct question, "In time of war shall the government have the right to tell farmers what crops they must raise and what prices they are to get?" Again the farmers of the nation answered in the affirmative by almost a two-to-one majority.

It would thus appear that the congressional farm bloc, in voting that the government must not sell farm surpluses below parity prices, went entirely contrary to the wishes of two of every three farmers in the nation.

Similarly, the labor bloc in congress has taken determined stand against any government "freezing," or other control of wages paid industrial labor during the war. Yet labor, like the farmers, voted overwhelmingly in favor of just such controls, in the same Gallup poll as that which recorded the farmer opinion on price controls.

A majority of farmers apparently want price controls and a majority of workers want wage controls in the hands of government. Yet congress blocs labeled the "farm bloc" and the "labor bloc" vote directly contrary to these expressed wishes.

Whom, then, do the farm bloc and the labor bloc represent? Could it be they have listened not to the voices of the real dirt farmers or the real working men and women, but the voices of exploiters of the farmer and of power-seeking "leaders" or organized labor?

Wanted, Soldier Reporters

The Army, various reports have it, is very much put out.

It appears it has decided to use soldiers as reporters in action. The hitch is the Army has 1,500 reporters and editors in its midst, but doesn't know who they are. This is, the story goes, because the Army didn't include newspapermen on the mechanical classification system cards. Almost every other occupation was given a notch.

While it is unpleasant to be in the position of arm-chair generals, it is impossible to avoid wondering if the Army has thought to ask the generals to ask the colonels to ask the captains to ask the lieutenants to ask the sergeants whether they have any newspapermen in their companies. The sergeants will know—the newspapermen are the ones who talk longest, argue loudest and cram their pockets fullest.

Or, better yet, post a notice in the canteen in 84-point Gothic reading: "Is There a Newspaperman in the House?"

Georgia Editors Say:

HARD TRUTH DRIVEN HOME

(From The Americas Times-Recorder.)

Wars are not won with brave words and string bands. Wars are won with deeds. Wars are won with production. Wars are won through the full, uncompromising co-operation of government, of labor, of industry, and of all the people.

Our war will be won or lost on the home front. Victory depends on whether we can make and deliver the endless quantities of planes and ships and guns and ammunition that our troops and our Allies so sorely need.

The people of this nation are now demanding in no uncertain voice that government, industry and labor co-operate so that the productive enterprises of this nation—the plane and tank factories, the motor plants, the oil and metal and coal industries, the power plants which motivate the machines of industry—can turn the blueprints of war needs into realities.

The disasters in the Pacific show what we may expect in the future unless we change the piddling policies of the past.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

FEW WORK STOPPAGES

WASHINGTON, March 23.—We now have the testimony of high government officials that work stoppages on account of strikes have fallen off to the point where they represent only three-one hundredths of 1 per cent of the war production program.

In other words, 99 and 97-100 per cent of our war work is proceeding without interruption. There are 8,000,000 industrial workers engaged in the war effort. That means all but an infinitesimal few of them have realized their responsibilities in the national emergency facing the nation and are applying themselves to the task wholeheartedly.

During the past two months, strikes have been so few and small as to have little significance. It has been that way ever since Pearl Harbor.

As regards the 40-hour week, Donald M. Nelson, head of the War Production Board, told a senate investigating committee that the average work week today is above this level and in a number of industries it approaches the maximum level at which best performance can be obtained. It has been steadily increasing during the past year. Here are the figures for the key industries:

Industry—Sept. 1941 Jan. 1942

Machine tools 51.4 hours 55 hours
Engines, turbines 46.5 51.1
Aircraft 45.6 49.7
Shipbuilding 44.8 48.2
Machinery 45.1 47.1
Aluminum 42.4 45.9
Iron and steel 40.7 41.3

THESE ARE FACTS These are the cold facts of the situation. They are not hearsay or erroneous misinformation such as the report put out recently by the National Manufacturers' Association that defense industry strikes in February had been responsible for the loss of 2,000,000 man hours of work—enough to build 2,000 planes.

Under the circumstances, it is difficult to explain the public misconception that has inspired the flow of letters to congress recently denouncing labor and demanding repeal of the 40-hour week statute.

Congress is preparing to investigate the matter. It is curious to know who started the protests, whether any organized movement is back of it. Tabulations of some of the letters and telegrams received show a marked similarity. New Dealers suspect that it is an undercover drive of die-hard Tory elements to undo all of the gains made by labor under the New Deal.

UNJUSTIFIED AGITATION It does seem to be a fact that picture justifies the current agitation on the subject. Labor is behaving itself very well. It is doubtful that the national compliance with the Ten Commandments is on a par with labor's noninterference with the war production program. A record of 99.97 per cent performance is pretty high in any congregation.

To abolish the 40-hour week would be harmful to our production picture, Mr. Nelson believes. His views are shared by President Roosevelt, the secretary of labor, Lieutenant General Knudsen, and practically the entire superstructure of the governmental machine in Washington.

NELSON KNOWS It is Mr. Nelson's job to keep the war production program moving. When he deems the 40-hour week, congress and the country should listen to him. To deny him a knowledge of what he is about is like kibitzers running the war. Here are the facts as outlined by Mr. Nelson: "In discussing time and one-half hour double time, a sharp distinction should be made between extra pay given for straight overtime work and extra pay given for work on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays as such."

"The overtime pay which goes with the 40-hour week—time and one-half pay usually—probably has a good deal of value as an incentive to labor to put in the extra four hours which are so necessary at this time. It is the equivalent of the premium price being paid industry for added output."

"... I believe that to abolish the 40-hour week law would be harmful to our production picture. The extra money earned by the worker in war industries through the time and one-half provision has done much to counterbalance the increase in living costs. If we suddenly should abolish that extra earning we would create strong demands for a general upward revision in wage rates so that the weekly rate can be kept."

LEAVE WELL ENOUGH ALONE Mr. Nelson thus looks ahead and foresees the results of any 40-hour week repeal. The country would be immediately faced with an upheaval in demands on the part of labor for higher rates to make up the difference. No one accepts a reduction of pay at a time of rising living costs without a howl. Labor could not be expected to. Why not leave well enough alone? Better still, why not leave the management of the war production program to those charged with the responsibility?

The government heads say no new legislation is now needed on the subject. When it is, congress will be asked to act.

Human Hindrances

In Washington.

That competent military observer for the North American Newspaper Alliance, Colonel Frederick Palmer, had some pungent things to say in a recent column of his, about the "excess human baggage" in Washington.

He says the men who are doing the real work in all departments of war production and war preparation, have for many weeks been steadily raising the percentage of the "excess human baggage" in Washington.

He says the men who are doing the real work in all departments of war production and war preparation, have for many weeks been steadily raising the percentage of the "excess human baggage" in Washington.

Those are the conclusions reached, conservatively enough, by Colonel Palmer.

Who They Are.

These human impediments consist, further to quote the colonel, "of the busybodies who run circles with their noses under their arms, looking important because they are doing civil war work. Once they have an office and a stenographer, they are all set. Chiefs must spare time to listen to them and read their output of memoranda on impractical ideas."

The best service for their country that at least 10 per cent of the "war workers" in Washington could do for their country would be either as privates in the rear ranks of the Army, or in a concentration camp where they might pour out memoranda on their typewriters all day long and hold meetings at night when all could talk at once, just to promote the idea of unified command.

These include the young men who have no conception of their own exceptional brain capacity they feel quite justified in referring to the rest of us as "morons." These are the young men who are so worried about the "complacency" of the country and want so badly to "arouse America to her peril."

Frankly, a large proportion of them are young men who are so anxious to avoid Army service and the draft they have worked up a legend about their "indispensability" in some secure and comfy Washington office.

They include the sons of men with sufficient influence to find some safe spot for Junior to stay in until the war's dangers are over. In other words, they ought to be ashamed of themselves, of fathers who likewise ought to feel shame.

If you have any acquaintances among young men who are seeking an administrative or office job at Washington, look at them slightly askance. You will be justified. For there are enough at Washington already for every conceivable purpose and man power is needed much more either in the uniform of the active fighting service or in the civil uniform of the war factories where hard work is the order of the day.

Needn't Worry About the "Morons."

These young alarmists need not worry about "complacency" among the average people of the United States. They are not grumbling because they are far from complacent; they are worried. Worried about Washington, particularly about the "excess human baggage."

But the average people are doing their job in the war in manner beyond criticism. They are sending their sons into the Army with a smile and a word of good cheer. They are quite happy about automobile tires, automobiles, about lessened supplies of sugar and gasoline and other things. They are not grumbling because there'll soon be no more radios, refrigerators, typewriters and so on, to buy.

The average people are purchasing well toward $1,000,000,000 a month in Defense bonds and stamps and they have paid their income taxes with pride they are thus able to help.

The average people are the boys in the Army camps who are eagerly learning the job of soldiering, so foreign to their thought not so long ago. The camps where men with no resources other than their $21 a month are earning commissions as officers, because their ability rates them, while sons of such as General John J. Pershing and a Rockefeller are proud to be in the Army as privates or sergeant's stripes.

Japan

Was Smart

LONG BEACH, Cal., March 23.—Major Harry L. Bateson, the garden man, says Japan was smart all right.

He says she let us build up a seven-year supply of whisky, knowing that wouldn't do us any special good in wartime (and Bateson isn't a whisky-hater, either).

But while she was doing that, she stripped us of scrap iron, made pretty sure we were going to run out of rubber and tin, and got us in her grasp in many other little ways—not the littlest of which, he considers, is our dependence on her for garden seeds.

Bateson says that during the years after the last war America concentrated on flowers until she was producing 90 per cent of the world's flower seeds. But on vegetables we did just the reverse. Other countries were supplying 90 per cent of our vegetable seed. And a good portion of that 90 per cent came from Japan.

Consequently, Bateson says, we are in for a dangerous shortage of vegetable seed. Prices have already skyrocketed on some things, he says. He thinks we could re-establish our seed-producing ability within a year, if we would. But will we?

Chaotic

Condition

As you know, the Japanese were the gardeners of California. Now they have to give up their farms and move out, which is all right with practically everybody, including me.

But the transplanting of these Japanese will produce a vegetable shortage unless some program is worked out for taking over their farms. And I can find no such program. The whole thing is pretty chaotic.

Bateson has a solution, which sounds all right to me. As you know, southern California is the happy hunting ground for retired farmers from all over America. They're all sitting around half-lonely out here in the sun, wishing they had something to do.

Bateson suggests putting these hundreds of thousands of retired farmers in charge of the vacated Japanese vegetable farms, then picking up or drafting enough unemployed and Mexican labor to run the farms. And there are unemployed people, thousands of them, despite the war boom.

It would please the farmers, utilize the land, and produce the necessary vegetables.

Garden

Major Bateson has built a small building in his garden plot, resembling a one-room schoolhouse. Here he teaches his classes in "Major Bateson's Practical Garden School." The class runs every morning from 9 to 12. He handles from 150 to 300 students a week.

He starts them out in a primary way, just as though they had never seen a cabbage or a rake. He teaches them about soil, and watering, and fertilizing, and digging. He teaches them what to plant, and when to plant it. He gives them the rotation that will give them the most vegetables coming to their table 52 weeks a year.

He lectures and draws pictures on the blackboard and answers questions. And then they go into his gardens, where he has plots arranged so they can see vegetables in every stage from the ground-breaking to the harvest. He says that anybody who can't garden successfully after six weeks in his class ought to be shot.

These classes have been going for years. So far he hasn't had any great surge of war-garden students, but he expects it.

While I was there a young couple came around to inquire, and the young fellow started arguing that he thought draftsmen should draft and riveters should rivet for the war effort, and real gardeners do all the gardening. Since he felt that way, I couldn't figure out why he came around, and Bateson couldn't either. He says he gets some funny ones.

Parasite

Problem

Major Bateson says another great peril to our market basket is going to be the lack of insecticides. He can visualize the garden bugs eating us up.

For he says the base of most insecticides is a plant called pyrethrum, which is raised mostly in Japan. He says he tried for years to get American manufacturers to buy it from American growers, in order to encourage growth here. But they already had their contracts with Japan, so nothing came of it. And now we have practically no pyrethrum.

He doesn't know what we're going to do about the bug, worm and insect situation.

In addition to his gardens, Major Bateson raises rabbits. Huge white rabbits, each of which would fill a harvest table. They're ready to eat at less than two months of age.

Bateson says you can start with two rabbits and keep a whole family in meat forever. He seems to have everything solved. A backyard full of vegetables a pen of rabbits, and thou.

The war is going to be won by the average people, under the leadership of really competent workers. These competent ones at Washington need feel no fear. As to the war outcome or as to appreciation of the service they perform.

But the "excess human baggage" might better go home and report to the local draft board. And any further, prospective "excess human baggage" should stay away from Washington, with care.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

FOOTBALL-BASEBALL

Mr. L. W. (Chip) Robert, who is more or less well known in our town, has precipitated the Board of Regents right back on the front page by saying he will ask that the university suspend football at Georgia and Georgia Tech for the duration of the war.

This caused loud screams of anguish in some quarters. Some infuriated ones declared that Mr. Robert, as an old Tech scrub, wanted to wipe out what looks like the best team Georgia ever had.

Others, but slightly more calm, were in favor merely of punching Mr. Robert in some sensitive spot.

Still others hurried to the officials of the state and to the regents, mindful that Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt had urged that baseball continue and that sports be augmented to really do a job in building up the young men and women of the nation.

They heard Chancellor S. V. Sanford, my old companion of the drawing rooms in the football days a decade ago, announce his report called for such an expansion—the greatest sports program in the history of the university.

—including walking, exercises and other activities tending to expand the collegiate chest along with the head; the biceps along with the cerebrum; the extensors and flexors along with the irregular verbs.

They heard Mr. William Alexander, of Georgia Tech, dean of coaches and one of the finest of persons, whose football team does not figure to be very good, say he deemed it a patriotic duty to carry on a sports program.

They heard that West Point and the Naval Academy would carry on their football schedules.

At the end of the day Mr. Robert, if he had but known it, was bedraggled, bruised and battered.

As a matter of fact—the public will decide.

MR. MANN'S DILEMMA No man knows what the public response will be. The public will get excited about football. Or it will look at the football players and wonder why they are not in uniform.

It will make no difference about ages or conditions if the public takes that trend. The public isn't reasonable. If it decides to be unreasonable.

You will find Mr. Earl Mann, for instance, advertising for all available crystal balls.

He and his fellow presidents of baseball teams have looked in every crystal ball of which they are aware; they have worn paths to the doors of the soothsayers and those who can read palms and the bumps on one's head. . . . to no avail.

The baseball people know that people will either be tremendously interested in baseball, as anodyne for war . . . or, the public will stay at home and think and read and worry about the war.

They know, too, that tires will be wearing and that it will be easier to stay away.

You may doubt your hat to Mr. Mann's perspicacity. He went out with Paul Richards, the astute manager, and they got together a group of kids of about 18 years of age and some older men who have families and are exempt from the draft. Not once has the Atlanta baseball club sought to have a man deferred.

They've got some hustling kids and a few old-timers. It ought to be interesting to see them develop and scramble for games. Better able to meet the financial troubles than most, he trimmed his sails. He did not want players at whom the public might point and say, "Why aren't those men serving their country?" He got kids a year or two away from the age of service and men with too many kids to be taken.

He'd like to know what the baseball public will be doing this summer. His problem comes well before that of the football coaches, who play once a week. The baseball teams schedule 154 games.

THE TIDES OF WAR No one knows what furious tides of war may be flowing by summer. We will have three and a half million men in uniform by June.

They are baseball-going, football-interested young men. They will be concentrated in camps. A few hundred thousand of them, perhaps a half-million, will be arrived or on their way to battles.

It may be very difficult to think of sport.

That is why the President urged baseball to go on and urged sports programs generally be maintained as far as possible.

He wants you to take a little time off to relax—to forget the pressures as you watch a double play or a triple with the bases filled.

We could use more good physical specimens. We used to laugh at the news reels of the Germans—20 years ago—15 years ago—10 years ago—going through gymnastics, trotting around in athletic suits.

The reporters, seeing them come through Holland, Belgium, France—spoke of them as looking more like members of well-trained, big-time college football players than anything else. The exercises paid off.

We'll have to admit our high schools and colleges have done a poor job in mass exercise. We concentrated too much on 30 men. The war will correct that. Dr. Sanford has the right plan. It's never too late to start.

Atlanta Bride Is Toasted on Big Broadcast

Miss Ruthanna Butters and Lieutenant Saluted by Radio.

Miss Ruthanna Butters, pretty young Atlanta debutante, was a double-role bride yesterday.

She married the Army lieutenant of her choice at high noon at St. Luke's Episcopal church. In the afternoon over a national radio hookup she became a Camay bride.

For she was one of the select few whom the Camay soap makers had picked to toast on their radio program on their wedding day.

As Lieutenant and Mrs. Martin Schofield left the Piedmont Driving Club after meeting friends at a reception, they turned on the radio of their car and heard the National Broadcasting System send out a toast to the Atlanta bride at the opening of the Camay program.

Martin Block, in a drawing, understanding voice read a tribute studied with pretty adjectives which wove themselves into the background of the wedding March.

Then he toasted: "May your love always be like the ring placed on your finger to-day—bright and shiny, more precious than diamonds, and like a ring, never ending."

Mrs. Schofield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Butters, of 57 Huntington road, will live at Goodfellow Field, San Angelo, Tex., where Lieutenant Schofield is an instructor.

There she won't be a "soap" bride any longer—an Army wife she is.

Don't envy anyone who picked up a splendid used car. Do as HE did. Find one exactly like it in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood. Here's how!

If you are one of those unfortunate who have worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, have been vexed by overeating worries, or have suffered with colds, flu, or other illness... yet have no organic trouble, or food infection... and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number... if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is what should help you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build up blood strength when deficient... to restore and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat... to make use of it as nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality... pep... become animated... more attractive!

Build sturdy health

For when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food... stomach digestive miseries should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color... to its so-called fighting strength... this makes for better body tone... muscular and mental freshness!

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Surprising results may be had by making the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it usually gets results—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again."

PUPILS HONOR FORMER PRINCIPAL—Sixth grade students at I. N. Ragsdale school plant a tree in memory of their principal, Miss Lonnie Spahr, who served their school 26 years prior to her death on March 22, 1939. Jean McGarity sets the tree in place as other members of her class look on.

James Carl Camp, 41, Succumbs at Smyrna

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., March 23.—

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock from Smyrna Presbyterian church for James Carl Camp, 41, who died Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Alton H. Glasire officiating, with interment in Oak Hill cemetery, Acworth.

Mr. Camp married the former Miss Dorothy Powell 17 years ago, was a member of Smyrna Presbyterian church and moved to Smyrna two years ago from Fair Oaks.

Surviving besides his wife are one daughter, Miss Fay Camp, of Smyrna; parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Camp, of Acworth; three sisters, Mrs. Herbert Prather, of Acworth; Mrs. Roy Payne, of Dalton; Mrs. W. F. Cheatham, of Canton, Ohio; one brother, R. H. Camp, of Hickory, N. C.

Harold H. Clokey, of Atlanta, has been placed on the honor roll at Fishburne Military School, Waynesboro, Va., for having a term average of 85 per cent or better. Major Charles M. Pace Jr., headmaster, announced yesterday.

Selection of a jury to try Dr. Virgil C. Cook, Dr. William Augustus Starnes, and Julius Delameter, druggist, on a charge of violation of the Harrison narcotic act, was begun in federal district court yesterday. The defendants were indicted last January by the federal grand jury.

Gain of $4,100,000 in bank clearings yesterday over the corresponding day last year was reported by the Atlanta Clearing House Association. Total yesterday was $19,000,000.

Circle Five of the Woman's Council, Peachtree Christian church, will sponsor a book review by Mrs. James H. Dobbs at 11 o'clock this morning at 1590 Peachtree street.

Pardoned three weeks ago so he would enter one of the army services, 20-year-old Grady Osborne was back in jail yesterday.

AROUND Atlanta WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

Following the lead of President Roosevelt, the Governor yesterday proclaimed April 6 Army Day in Georgia. He urged individuals and institutions to display the United States flag.

Classes for air raid wardens, auxiliary police and firemen will be started tonight at Fairburn, Union City and Palmetto, Mike Benton, chief air raid warden of Fulton county, announced yesterday.

Civilian Club will hear W. S. Allen, president of the Greenville, Ga., club at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

On a charge of "suspicion of forgery," he was arrested by Patrolman J. L. Moseley after presenting a check at a chain store and then fleeing at the approach of a policeman. When pardoned by the Governor, Osborne was at liberty on an appeal bond, following conviction of theft of an automobile.

Rev. W. V. Gardner, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will deliver the third address in the series on "This Creature Called Man," at 6:45 o'clock tonight at the Bible Club of the Y. M. C. A., 145 Luckie street, N. W.

Solicitor General John A. Boykin yesterday wrote the Governor asking that he be given immediate notice of the date of a new clemency hearing, said to have been requested for Dan Eidson, one of the convicted loggers, for whom a parole has been recommended by Prison Commissioners Royal K. Mann and Vivian Stanley.

Teddy Levitas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Levitas, of 704 Park drive, N. E., won the oratorical contest at the southern A. Z. A. conference held at Augusta. An Emory freshman, he will compete in the national contest to be held in Chicago in the summer.

Louis R. Beck, sales promotion manager of Harris-Seybold-Potter Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, will speak on "Why Advertise During the Present Emergency?" at the joint meeting of the Atlanta Manufacturers' Club and the Georgia Printers' Association at 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Ansley hotel.

Sponsored by the Southern Association of Teachers of Speech, a speech tournament with students and faculty members from 27 schools in 13 states competing in reciting or offering original oratory, will be held today and tomorrow at the Henry Grady hotel and Baptist Tabernacle. The association's annual convention will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Methodist ministers of the two Atlanta districts were informed yesterday that the evangelistic tent ordered by them some months ago is now ready for delivery. The tent measures 50 by 80 feet. Special revival meetings will begin May 1.

After he had pleaded guilty of murder, Eddie Lee Burnett, alias Shirt Tail, a Negro, yesterday was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court. Burnett admitted stabbing Alma Linton to death.

E. S. Papp, fifth district defense co-ordinator, and Vernon Frank, DeKalb defense chairman, addressed the Druid Hills Civic Association last night at the Druid Hills school.

Graduates of Commercial High school will hold their annual banquet at 7 o'clock tonight, with members of the faculty as guests.

President George H. King, of Abraham Baldwin College at Tifton, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club to be held at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Ansley.

All groups of the Business Women's Bible Class of the Grant Park Baptist church will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the church.

Bob C. Robinson, of the United States Navy, son of Mrs. Ruth Robinson, a teller in a downtown bank, has arrived safely in a United States port after several months at sea, his mother reported last night.

Rains Halt Farming Operations in Hancock

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. SPARTA, Ga., March 23.—Hancock county farmers are far behind in their plowing this fall and this, coupled with a shortage of labor, causes them to get restless to start but continued rains have kept them at a standstill. Some of them will use tractors for breaking their lands as soon as it is dry enough, while the majority of them will depend on mule power. They are not discouraged, however, and expect to make a desperate effort to make a crop when they do get started, with food for the family as a leading feature.

Many farmers will plant peanuts for the first time and expect to make this their second money crop in future years.

Silhouetted Jap Carrier Is Target For U. S. Submarine

CHICAGO, March 23.—(AP)—An American submarine commanded by a native Chicagoan, Lieutenant Commander George Voge, recently torpedoed a Japanese aircraft carrier silhouetted in the moonlight, Correspondent George Weller reported today in a copyrighted Chicago Daily News dispatch from "an American naval base, somewhere in Australia."

AIR BASE ALLOCATION.

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—(AP)—The Navy Department has allocated $7,000,000 each for construction of Naval Reserve air bases at Norman, Okla., and Memphis, Tenn., Captain T. A. Thomson, acting commandant of the Eighth Naval District here, announced today.

Fifth District Film Operators, Dental Group House Owners, Hears Experts Adjust Dispute

National President Pay Set at $1.09 an Hour Until September.

Members of the Fifth District Dental Society, with a number of distinguished visitors from other states, yesterday began a two-day conference at the Biltmore hotel. It was known as the Thomas P. Hinman Midwinter Clinic, in honor of a former leading dentist of Atlanta who founded it.

The programs are being devoted to addresses on technical subjects. Dr. J. Hoyt Simpson, of Atlanta, president of the district society, is presiding.

Dr. Oren A. Oliver, Nashville, Tenn., president of the American Dental Association, spoke yesterday. He was followed by Dr. J. Warren Crozier, of Philadelphia; Dr. Frank W. Rounds, of Boston; Dr. Victor H. Sears, of New York; Dr. Edward B. Spalding, of Birmingham, Mich.; and Dr. Roger E. Sturdevant, of Atlanta.

Today's session will be devoted to lecture clinics.

New One-Cent Pieces

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP)—New one-cent pieces with the tin content reduced because of the war, have been distributed to the public but they looked so much like the old kind that the mint said today apparently no one noticed the difference.

The new "penny" has an infinitesimal amount of tin—being about 95 per cent copper and 5 per cent zinc—instead of 1 per cent tin. The coins have been sent out from the Denver and Philadelphia mints.

A new nickel-less nickel, made half of silver and half of copper, will be made soon under a new law requiring a 60-day wait before the change could be made. The nickel metal—25 per cent—formerly went into the nickel will go for war purposes.

Tennessee Site Picked

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP)—The War Department said today a site at Dyersburg, Tenn., had been approved for establishment of an air training school for the Army.

No contracts have been awarded. No information concerning the size or estimated cost of the school was made public.

Governor Decrees Hard Work for All Georgians

should have been spent with a capital—it was a little river the poet was talking about—not the sort of river the debutantes would imagine.

They'll understand.

"That's all right," said the Governor, "I know the debutantes will understand the difference. The war has got to be won."

The Governor is implacable about an all-out victory. He doesn't like wise-cracking about the war.

"The state of Georgia," he said yesterday, "will add no tax burden to a public that will be taxed heavily for a national war effort—I have anything to say about it."

Economy in every corner of every office in the state government, by all employees of all ranks, from department heads on down, is the demand of the Governor.

Savings on everything—lead pencils and paper and every minor item, even that costs the state money will be demanded.

To department heads, he addressed this notice:

"We will wind up this quarter on March 31 and inasmuch as all agencies of state, with the exception of the Highway Department, have sufficient cash on hand to pay all outstanding obligations, you are requested to make every effort to see that your accounts are paid by March 31 so that any indebtedness reported on the next budget will be the absolute minimum. To the Highway Department, you have sufficient funds on hand to pay in full all accounts incurred during the last 15 months and you are also to see that these are cleared promptly.

"In the case that you do not realize the magnitude of the loss in revenue to the state, a 30 per cent reduction in fuel oil tax receipts means a $7,000,000 loss in revenue to the state for the year and in view of this, you are requested to submit your budget for the next quarter only for the absolute essentials, eliminating all items which would lead towards expansion of your services, thereby creating a future demand for new taxes which we will not condone.

Concentrate on Victory.

"We feel that with the proper co-operation from all you department heads that even in face of the heavy reduction, we can carry on until December 31 the maintenance of our state institutions, the operations of our schools, the payments of old age pensions, the maintenance of highways, the funds to the counties and absolute essential operations of the other departments of the state.

"Keep in mind that you can lighten the future tax burden of our people in these times when every effort should be concentrated in bringing about victory to our people by watching every expenditure you make and asking yourself the question if such expenditure will lead towards additional state taxes. If so, have no hesitancy in eliminating the expenditure.

"Your budgets for the quarter beginning April 1, 1942, are to be completed on the foregoing basis and filed in the office of the state auditor not later than April 5, 1942.

"You are requested to acknowledge receipt of these budget instructions to the state auditor."

Not Worried.

"Do you expect the department heads to pay any attention to a general message like this, or will they just toss it aside?" he was asked.

"They certainly will pay attention to it," the Governor declared emphatically.

"I'm not worried about my department heads. They've done a fine job of helping the state to take care of that $26,666,000 county refunding debt which the state assumed in 1935.

"There's only $8,000,000 still due on that obligation," said the Governor, "and we'll take care of it by economizing and with hard work."

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. pointed out at the conference that the $7,000,000 reduction in oil revenue is all that is expected this year.

Losses in revenue from income taxes will not come until next year, said Thrasher.

"By that time," said the Governor, "we'll be showing a fine job of saving what little we have. The federal government needs the money today. We can't ask for any more."

New Assaults R. L. Foreman Against Malta Is Elected Head Of Rotary Club

Air Blitz Expert in Charge of Nazi Fliers in Sicily.

LONDON, March 23.—(P)—The Nazi air commander who directed the devastation of Warsaw and Coventry, Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring, has been put in charge of German airmen in Sicily, British informants reported today.

The move was interpreted here as possibly pointing to a stepped-up aerial offensive against Malta, possibly followed by sea-borne invasion.

The 55-year-old marshal, who also figured largely in aerial operations against France and Russia, is expected to increase co-ordination between the German and Italian air forces, both of which operate from Sicily.

Malta has been raided daily since he took charge in Sicily, and the rocky Mediterranean island fortress has become known as one of the most bombed spots on earth.

Today was a typical one on the life of the battered island—the Germans blasted away without pause from dawn to dusk and in so doing lost a number of certain and two probable and six others were damaged. Not a single RAF fighter was lost.

The importance of this bastion to the Germans in contemplating a sharp drive against the Allied line from Tobruk to the Caucasus drive on Egypt if Malta threatens Axis lines.

"Real success in the Middle East, that is the capture of Alexandria and Cairo," said one informant, "cannot be attained without the Axis flank any more than the British could invade without first occupying Crete."

Education Unit. Active in Work, He Devoted Much Time to

R. L. Foreman Jr., life insurance agent, was elected president of the Rotary Club of Atlanta at yesterday's meeting. His father was president in 1921.

Other officers elected were: First vice president, T. M. Forbes; second vice president, William A. Dobson; secretary, Richard P. Smith, and sergeant-at-arms, Rex Neely.

Directors named were: John McDonald, Fred Patterson, Fred Orr, Earl Mann, Joe Winship, Garnett Roby, Richard Schwab, Charles Marshall, Edwin Yancey and Walter Mitchell.

Foreman has taken a very active part in Rotary work, devoting much time to the Educational Foundation, which makes loans to college students. He has served as chairman of the loan committee.

He has been in the insurance business here since he was graduated from the University of Georgia.

Governor Gets Luncheon Planned Here Friday for Noted Surgeon.

Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer will honor Dr. J. Shelton Horsley, widely known surgeon, at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Biltmore hotel.

Author of many works on surgery, Dr. Horsley was graduated from the University of Virginia and practiced in Nelson county, Virginia, before going to New York. He was editor of the New York Polyclinic Medical Journal for two years.

He was professor of surgery at the Medical College of Virginia from 1902 to 1912. He is a Fellow of the American Surgical Association, Southern Surgical Association and American Medical Association. He is a former president of the Medical Society of Virginia, Southern Medical Association and Virginia Academy of Science.

He is author of several books on surgery, and is associate editor of Lewis Practice of Surgery.

Burglar Enters Red Cross But Takes No Loot

Valuable Hand-Knitted Articles Ignored by Intruder.

Ignoring thousands of dollars worth of hand-knitted sweaters, gloves and socks ready for distribution among the United States armed military forces, a burglar early Monday entered offices of the American Red Cross, 848 Peachtree street, left empty handed after breaking open a soft drink vending machine.

The burglar, police reported, climbed up the front porch of the Red Cross building and slipped through a second story window.

Police expressed the opinion that the Red Cross burglar also had entered a number of establishments in the neighborhood, as reports were received by police that burglars had entered Kampner's grocery store, 608 Peachtree street, Briarcliff, last 347 Peachtree street, a liquor store at 77 Tenth street, N. W., lunch stand of Mrs. S. F. Hause, 13 Linden street, N. W., and the offices of Dr. W. L. Funkhouser, 33 Ponca de Leon avenue.

Only a small amount of cash and merchandise was obtained in the series of burglaries, police said.

Fulton Tower Is Wigwag for Papoose Here

er do to trust them! Men you get along with fine but vimmin they do you wrong if they get the chance!"

But her own little girl has had a wonderful effect on the other inmates in the women's section of Fulton tower. She's the pride of the department, and the girls, some of them in there for offenses which should make the straight black hair on Patricia's head curl, are her willing slaves. Voices are softened in consideration for her beauty naps. A place where the sun comes in through the bars of the long dormitory is reserved for her sunbaths and if she cries in the night there are no complaints from her loyal fellow prisoners.

"She spoiled!" chuckled Diana. But the other prisoners and the matrons loyally insist that she is not. She has received dozens of gifts of clothes and toys from the girls in the section and the matrons, as well as their friends outside. She spends most of her days sleeping peacefully in a nest of pillows in a rocker or being passed from arm to arm. At night she sleeps on an iron cot next to her mother's—and that's the only thing that worries Diana. In a little while Patricia will be big enough to lounge off the cot and onto the concrete floor.

Actually, Patricia, whose mother and Indian father were separated shortly after her birth in Birmingham, was not in Atlanta at the time her mother was arrested. She was with her grandfather, also an Oklahoma Indian, who is making furniture near Jonesboro, Ga. But a sympathetic officer who learned that it was imperative that the little papoose follow her mother if she were to get regularly permitted Diana to go get her.

"She go where I go!" proclaimed Diana with a fierceness that attests her racial background. "If they separate us they kill me!"

Diana emphatically doesn't like women and warns most of her clients against them but she is glad Patricia is a girl because, with the good start she is getting in her safe, warm home in Fulton tower, she is destined to become "a lady—a vera great lady!"

Mrs. Ida Green, 71, Dies at Hospital

Mrs. Ida Green, 71, who lived on Macon drive, died yesterday at a private hospital after a long illness.

She is survived by a son, Claude W. Green; a sister, Mrs. Alice Cane, and two grandchildren, Margaret and Helen Green.

Funeral plans will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

300 Volunteer Social Workers Start Training

Group Selected by Civilian Defense Office.

The first group of 300 men and women selected by the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office for special service in welfare, health and recreation agencies started their course of training yesterday in the Blue Flame Room of the Atlanta Gas Light Company. A second group started last night and a third group will begin training today.

The training course sponsored by the Social Planning Council consisted of 24 hours of classroom work and actual experience in social emergencies will lead to official defense service status. Volunteers needed by social agencies will be selected as far as possible from those successfully completing the prescribed training.

Miss Ernestine Magill, member of the executive board of the planning council, is teaching the general orientation section of the training course. Other leaders in the recreation, family and child care, and health fields will carry on other phases of the course.

In opening the afternoon session, Miss Rhoda Kaufman, executive of the planning council, explained that social agencies need additional volunteers at this time to take the place of those who have been called into war service. Others are needed in order to free the time of trained personnel from work which volunteers can do, thus providing more time of professional workers to assume new work resulting from wartime living.

Miss Karen Norris And James Sibley Will Be Honored

Miss Karen Norris and James Sibley, whose engagement was announced last week, will be complimented prior to their wedding, which will be performed on the evening of April 6 at the Cathedral of St. Philip.

The first party which has honored Miss Norris and Mr. Sibley was the dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spaulding Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Winborne were hosts last evening at the Mirador room of the Capital City Club. Covers were laid for 10 friends of the honor guests.

Next Saturday, Mrs. Josiah Sibley will entertain at a soft drink party at her home on Alton road for Miss Norris, guests to include a few close friends of the popular bride-elect. On the morning of April 6 following the wedding rehearsal, Mrs. Julian Harrison will give a breakfast at her West Wesley road residence for the Norris-Sibley bridal personnel and members of the two families.

La Rocca Grove Activities Chronicled.

Mrs. Edna Pyron, the guardian, presided at the recent meeting of Mary E. La Rocca Grove, of Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, held in the Masonic hall in East Point. Miss June Varian received the reports of personal services chairmen.

Mrs. Virginia Warr, the captain, directed the drill, and Mrs. Mary Barksdale was accompanist. Mrs. Bessie Goss acknowledged receipt of a case of canned milk for Grady hospital.

Mrs. Frances Cole will be hostess to the Service Club on Wednesday at her home in Hapeville. The month-old daughter of Mrs. Sallie Owen, who is named Peggy Lucile, was voted mascot of La Rocca Grove.

Future meetings of the officers will be held at 8 o'clock in the Masonic hall in East Point, with the president, Mrs. Leila Cotton-gim, presiding, and the business session takes place at 8:30 o'clock in the same hall.

Ann Frew To Give Recital on Saturday.

Eight-year-old pianist Ann Frew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Frew, will be presented in recital by Mozelle Horton Young at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Atlanta Chapter D. A. R. house, 1204 Piedmont avenue, N. E. Little Miss Frew's program will display her unusual talent in a listing of compositions of Clementi, Bach, Beethoven and romantic and modern composers.

Miss Elizabeth Cunningham, soprano, will be the assisting artist, singing a group of songs that will particularly appeal to children.

Miss Jane Gilroy, of Elizabeth, N. J., right, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. William A. Gilroy, left, during spring holidays from Smith College, where she is a student. A series of parties complimenting Miss Gilroy highlights this week's social calendar.

Spring Holidays at Smith Bring Charming Visitor Here

By SALLY FORTH.

... ONE OF THE CUTEST redheads to arrive in Atlanta in many a day is Jane Gilroy, of Elizabeth, N. J., who is the guest of her brother, William A. Gilroy Jr., and his charming wife, Ridgeley.

Jane arrived on Saturday—the day after spring holidays began at Smith College in Northampton, Mass., where she is a popular student. She will remain until Friday, and will form the inspiration for a series of festivities during her stay.

On Thursday she will share honors with bride-elect Evelyn Harrison at the shower at which her hostess will entertain at her Peachtree road apartment.

Jane, whose wavy red hair is offset by sparkling green eyes, is specializing in dramatics at Smith, in which field she is exceptionally talented. She enacted important roles in the plays, "The Petrified Forest" and "Little Women," when they were recently staged at the college. A devotee of sports, she likes casual clothes. She is poised and quite charming, and is certain to make a great "hit" in this city.

The Gilroys, you recall, moved here from the east late last spring shortly after their marriage. Mrs. Gilroy is the former Ridgeley Vermilye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Vermilye, of Plainfield, N. J., and enjoyed wide popularity during her young ladyhood in that city. She is a Junior League transfer, and numbers a wide circle of friends here, as well as in the east.

Patriotic Atlanta women are requested to report for volunteer work at the surgical unit of the American Red Cross headquarters at 850 West Peachtree street from every day throughout this week through Friday from 9:30 to 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. John O. Chiles is in charge of production and desires to fill the quota assigned to her, and only through a response to this request can she accomplish this end. The business girls' class is open from 5:30 to 9:30 o'clock, and supper can be procured at the canteen in the building.

Troy Bivings III Will Be Honored

Dr. and Mrs. W. Troy Bivings Jr. will entertain at a children's party on March 31 at the Piedmont Driving Club from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock in honor of their son, William Troy Bivings III, who will be six years old that day.

Assisting the hosts in entertaining will be their sister, Mrs. George Woodruff, of Daytona Beach, Fla.; Mrs. Clyde King Jr., Mrs. W. Troy Bivings Sr., grandmother of the honor guest, and his aunt, Mrs. Augustus Loyless.

The youthful honor guest is the only child of Dr. and Mrs. Bivings and is a popular member of the kindergarten, class at Spring Street school. He belongs to the primary class at the First Presbyterian church and its classmates at school and Sunday school will be invited to the party.

Master Bivings is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clyde King Sr., who were prominent citizens of Atlanta, and his paternal grandfather is Dr. W. Troy Bivings Sr., well-known Atlantian. He is the third generation of his family to bear his name.

... of Brunswick, Maine, and Mrs. William Sibley. Virginia Dulany were svelte black crepe. . . Mrs. Rufus Carswell chose a sophisticated black dinner gown topped with a paisley printed bodice. . . Clementina Ransom was chic in a beige and brown plaid suit.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Isaacs announce the birth of a son, Alfred Herbert Jr., on March 17 at Crawford W. Long hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Goldsmith Jr. announce the birth of a daughter, Sybil June, on March 19 at Crawford Long hospital.

Mrs. Bair Honors Daughter at Tea.

Mrs. A. E. Bair will be hostess today at a trousseau-tea at her home on Amsterdam avenue in compliment to her daughter, Miss Jane Bair, who will become the bride of Robert P. Yarbrough next Saturday.

Mrs. Bair will be assisted in entertaining by Misses Rowena Graves, Nelle Cheek, Henrietta Jones, Mesdames James Fitzpatrick, Spencer Kirkland, R. B. Ramsay, John Baldwin, E. K. Bryan and C. H. Graves.

Spirea and jonquils arranged in a crystal container will center the tea table, which will be overlaid with a lace cloth. Silver candleabra holding lighted white tapers will complete the appointments.

Miss Bowdre Budd To Reign As Seminary May Day Queen

Miss Bowdre Budd will reign as queen of the annual May Day fete at Washington Seminary as the result of elections held yesterday at the school.

Miss Cortez Cooledge will be the maid of honor and the members of the court will be Misses Betty Brown, Mary Callaway, Louise Camp, Palmour Holmes, Raiford Ragsdale, Tatty Shipp and Carolyn and Harriett Smith.

In addition to the May Day election, the superlatives were also named in the senior class as well as those in the arts division. Miss Jane Ward was named the spirit of the seminary, the highest honor bestowed upon a senior, and other superlatives were Misses Joy Rutland, most dependable; Jessie Strickland, most versatile; Mary Callaway, most athletic; Jane Hailey, most intellectual, and Mary Sutherland, most courteous.

The art superlatives include Misses Claudine Hopkins, music; Raiford Ragsdale, drama; JoAnne

To Plan Program.

The Atlanta Ladies' Memorial Association meets Friday at the Colonial Club rooms, 1094 Peachtree street, N. E., at 3 o'clock. Plans will be completed for Memorial Day program, which date comes on Sunday, April 26. The board will meet at 2 o'clock.

For Miss Huey And Mr. Harris.

Seaborn Fullilove, of Athens, entertained Miss Carolyn Huey and her fiancé, Rodney Harris, with a dinner party at the Henry Cady hotel Saturday evening.

The wedding party was invited and witnessed the opening of the first wedding presents of the young couple, presented by Mrs. Phillip Glover, Miss Frances Talmadge and Mr. Fullilove.

Mrs. John H. Carnes will entertain Miss Huey today at a desert-bridal. The guests will be Misses Jane Cunningham, Mildred Reese, Elizabeth Ray, Morie Burns, Suzanne Spence and Mrs. T. R. Fuller Jr.

Temporary Separation Tests the Wisdom Of Getting a Divorce

By Dixie George

Dear Dixie: My husband never believes anything I tell him and is forever raising Cain with me about things he has heard on me, about how I am and stays until all hours, and I have been told that he goes with one of my neighbors. Unless I go out with some friends, I am left alone at home while he steps out. It gets very lonely staying at home by myself, but just let me mention it, and he fusses. He also fusses when I go out. Nothing seems to please him. He has no consideration for the fact that my health is bad. He keeps telling me about some man whom he thinks I am going around with, but it is not true. I am beginning to realize that my husband cares nothing for me, for he has told me that he thinks we should part. If things do not get any better I think I will divorce him. What do you think about it? E. M. W.

It is a bitter pill for a woman to swallow when a man tells her he thinks they should part, and it's hard to realize that a man would change so completely. From his actions it certainly appears that he does not care for you, but I really think that you can

GIRL MUST BE QUICK TO NOTE COOLNESS

Dear Dixie: I have been going with a boy for six months and love him very much. He says he loves me, too, but he sometimes goes with other girls, but he insists that I am his best girl. He has been to see me once in a month, and then he made some excuse and brought me home. A girl friend of mine lives with us and she is very pretty. He came to see her once and said he was coming back. What can I do? Does he love me as he says he does or was he just talking? BROWN EYES.

There is no way on earth to explain a man's actions. Since he made some excuse to bring you home, I think he needs something to spur his interest in you again. Just because he goes with other girls is no reason to think he does not love you, but the thing for you to do is to start having dates with other boys. Do not let him think you are worried because he is calling on the other girl. That will satisfy them both too much and will make you appear jealous. If he tells you that you are his best girl, why don't you let him think that you believe in him and trust him? The boys do not like the girls to doubt their affections.

Exercises To Straighten Sway Back

By Ida Jean Kain

It's a law that objects cannot occupy the same space at the same time and, if your lower back curves in, your stomach has to curve out. The way to make the greatest improvement in your figure the fastest is to get rid of that sway back.

One thing you can do will help amazingly: Simply make a habit of sitting with the small of your back pressed against the back of your chair. As an exercise this is almost too mild to be counted. But, since you may easily sit for a third of the day, it results in a steady strengthening of the muscles in this region.

You may not have used the muscles in the lower back and abdomen for so long that you can't sit mar minutes in this position. In that case, start off with a few corrective exercises taken in a prone position on the floor.

One of the best consists in lying on your back on the floor, either with knees flexed and feet on the floor near the hips, or with feet elevated on a low bench or chair. As you lie there, rhythmically contract the stomach muscles and press the small of the back down against the floor. Hold hard for a second, relax, and repeat.

That is an easy exercise, although you may not find it so at first. As you become more limber, however, you will enjoy putting these muscles through their paces. After you have kept at this for a few days you will be ready to go on.

Lie on the back on the floor with both knees flexed, thighs resting on abdomen, and feet over the hips. Using your hip and stomach muscles, yank alternate knees down against the chest. You will have to work at this, but it will round out the lower back, give you a flat stomach, and even slim the hips. Begin with about 20 counts for both knees and gradually increase.

The "wall bicycle" is another effective corrective for sway back and protruding abdomen. Lie with buttocks close to wall, legs straight up the wall. Flex one knee and bring it to chest, then slide foot back up wall. As this foot goes up, the other should come down. Continue for 20 counts and gradually add to your stint.

Finally, "walk" up the wall—keep your hips toward the wall and, beginning near the floor, walk up the wall until your body is in a fairly straight line from toes to chest. Do not climb so high that your back arches. Hold for a second and walk down again. About four times will be enough for that one. Take it slowly and contract the lower abdominal muscles as you do the exercise.

Never repeat any exercise routine until it becomes automatic. A variety of exercises holds your interest and makes you use your muscles more efficiently.

Send a large stamped return envelope to Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for the leaflet "Posture Makes the Figure," which includes correction of sway back.

Casual suit in Glen Plaid with club collar and patch pockets is a bright beginner for the Spring season. Pretty CBS Actress Melinda Leighton, heard on many "Screen Guild" shows, chooses hers in a gray and black combination. With it she wears a black sailor with jersey drape and short suede gloves. A gay note of color may be added with the blouse.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace

Mother: "John keeps asking for cookies to carry out to the boys. I wonder why he feels he must give them something in order to be liked." Son: "Can I have some cookies to give to the boys?" Mother: "Yes, here are some. I'm glad you're such a generous boy."

It is possible for excessive generosity to be an effort to buy favor with other children.

MY DAY: Will of the People Determines Outcome

By Eleanor Roosevelt

CORONADO, Cal., Sunday.—All travel today is more or less uncertain and may be interrupted. I discovered this on my trip across the country, when just beyond Tucson I learned that the plane was almost entirely filled with ferry pilots. I think there were just two other civilian travelers besides me, who had been allowed to make the trip without interruption. One of the boys had an advance release of Mr. Archibald MacLeish's speech, which was delivered on the 20th, and it was passed around and read.

It led to much discussion, but there was general agreement with his thesis that the will of the people determines the final outcome of any war. I think the will of the people is pretty well set in this country, except for occasional slight confusions created by certain interests on one side or the other. They may succeed temporarily in gaining some particular point of interest to their group, but if we hold to the old theory that it is impossible to fool all of the people all of the time, we shall probably feel that whatever is the truth will eventually reach all the people.

Since I missed the morning plane on Friday for San Diego, I took the train and the trip was not without interest. The first person to speak to me was Mrs. Bancroft from San Diego. She and her husband have written a book on southern California. They studied the bird life of the region for years, incidentally becoming very familiar with the geography and the Mexican people. Their knowledge has been of use in our preparation for defense and she was kind enough yesterday to send me her husband's book, which I know the President will enjoy.

I enjoyed, also, talking to a free lance writer, who is evidently the kind of man who does not think that you can put your liberalism up in camphor balls when the going is hard and take it out unharmed when difficulties come to an end. One hears this argued so much these days that it is sometimes difficult to decide where common sense and patriotism end and self-interest begins.

Johnnie, Annie and Rommie met me at the station and we spent the rest of the day very quietly with Johnnie, Annie and their little boy. On Saturday I moved over to spend the night with James and his wife, and had the pleasure of meeting two of his superior officers and saw the stations were both boys work. This morning I am leaving for Los Angeles.

Carole Lombard's Last Movie Is Breaking Box Office Records

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD, March 12.—If length is a box office omen, "The Sun Is My Undoing," recently purchased by MGM for Clark Gable, should outgross "Gone With the Wind". It is 121 pages longer than the weighty Margaret Mitchell tome and represents another monumental job for the celluloid condensers.

Proving definitely, as did Jean Harlow's last picture, that posthumous movies are not anti-box-office, Carole Lombard's "To Be or Not To Be" will be one of the greatest grossing productions in the history of United Artists. It is breaking records throughout the nation.

Following the completion of "Ten Gentlemen From West Point," somebody thought it would be a swell idea to give the mule used in the film, representing West Point's first masocet, to the U. S. Military Academy. But a slight hitch occurred. U. No. the mule, why not go to the academy. He earned $1,250 a week in the picture and makes 10 times that amount each year through vaudeville engagements.

Kathryn Grayson, heroine of "Tulip Time," will have six sisters in the story—and one will be the real thing. Her 18-year-old sister, Frances Raeburn (two years younger than Kathryn) will make her screen debut in that picture. She's on the natural blond side, and sings, too.

To conserve tires, studios are now holding previews in centrally located Hollywood theaters. However, MGM was forced to make a last-minute change and show "Rio Rita" in the suburban Glendale, 20 miles away. The superstitious stars, Abbott and Costello, insisted. All their previous hits have been previewed in the same Glendale theater—and they would hear of no shift.

There's a Los Angeles ordinance forbidding necking in the movie houses, but Paramount, announcing plans for its new house—billed as "America's most distinguished theater"—proudly boasts "as a novelty, love seats will be installed throughout the auditorium."

As a result of war priorities, the knock-down-cut-out fight between George Montgomery and John Sutton in "The Ten Gentlemen From West Point" might be technically termed a "taffy pull." Instead of the customary breakaway windows connected of resin (forbidden) the "glass" is now made of candy, as it was in the Mack Sennet slapstick era.

There is one difference—the sugar used is a dextrose, since cane and beet sugar these days are needed for conversion into alcohol. Pity poor Claire Trevor. Never able to carry a tune, she finds she must not only sing a song in "Crossroads," co-starring Hedy Lamarr and William Powell as a team, but she must sing it in French!

Fredric March will take the role in "I Married a Witch," turned down by Joel McCrea. The story back of McCrea's refusal is that he wants to make no more pictures with Veronica Lake. Her billing in "Sullivan's Travels," made Joel look like a supporting player. Veronica is the subject of a tremendous publicity push at Paramount right now and any performer—even stars—working with her are very likely to get lost in the shuffle.

Down in Rio to make a movie, Orson Welles is cutting "The Magnificent Ambersons," which he left behind him, by long distance telephone. Making life for his associates even more complex, Orson insists on eating Hollywood food. Joseph Cotton, his actor-friend, arranges weekly shipments of Chinese dishes for the long trip via Pan-American Airlines. That's how life is with Orson.

Ava Gardner, the Mickey Rooney bride, will make her first screen appearance since marriage, in "Pierre of the Plains." She may be billed "Mrs. Mickey Rooney," Mickey, by the way, is dropping his Andy Hardy responsibilities temporarily to star in "A Yank at Eton." It's the story of an American boy who dreamed of attending Notre Dame and missed out when his mother married an Englishman.

The Man Who Makes Hating A Profitable Business

By Damon Runyon

Communique from the Broadway front.

Last night this guy Jack the Hater comes looking me up again in Lindy's restaurant and naturally I am glad to see him as I am hearing good reports of him from Washington, D. C., where Jack is now in business as a public hater and gets nice fees for hating people from guys who don't do their own hating out loud.

So I give him a big how-are-you although of course I do not really care how he is, and Jack sits down with me and asks me if he knows where he can locate a guy by the name of Sad Sam, who is a horse player by trade, and this question surprises me a little as nobody ever before wishes to locate Sad Sam except maybe to know what places to avoid so they will miss seeing him.

This Sad Sam is really a very gloomy character and to tell you the truth if I have my choice between sitting up all night with him or a corpse I will choose the corpse as it is sure to be more cheerful. So I tell Jack the Hater that I not only do not know where to find Sad Sam but that I hope I never find him and then I ask him what he wants with Sad Sam anyway and Jack says to me like this: "Well," he says, "I am doing so nicely with my public hate business that I am thinking of putting in a branch and Sam Sam is just the guy for me. I am thinking of putting a morning line on misery."

"Oh," I says, "you mean a morning line like we get on the horses every morning, only this one will be on sorrowful stuff?" "Well," Jack the Hater says, "that is the idea."

"Well," I say, "you are looking for the right guy. I never see Sad Sam but what he says 'Who do you think dies just now,' or 'Who do you suppose has monies,' or 'Whose wife runs away from him, or who falls down and breaks a leg.' Yes, I say, Sad Sam is really your guy to get you up the morning line on misery, but Jack is there a market for such matters in Washington?"

"Plenty," Jack says. "I have fifty clients in mind right now. I am doing some public hating for some of them and they are good pay. I will work up a fine trade in the morning line on misery with Sad Sam. I will give him the necessary information on the misery and all he will have to do is go around to the clients every day and recite it to them."

"Why," Jack, I say, "do you mean to tell me they will be interested in misery such as Sad Sam brings around? Will they be interested in guys dying and having disease and their broads running away from them?"

"Well," Jack says, "Of course he will have to be a little less local and deal bigger misery such as the way the war is going, unless it happens to be going good, and who is doubtingcrossing who in administration circles, but a bit of small talk such as Sad Sam is accustomed to dealing will not hurt, however," Jack says, "I will soon broaden him out."

"How do you get this idea, Jack?" I say.

"Well," he says, "I notice soon after arriving in Washington that many guys are going around giving out a morning line on misery, and that many citizens are glad to listen to them but they generally only have one or two items and no system of distribution. They just stand and give their line to anybody that comes along."

"So," Jack says, "I figure that I bring in an expert like Sad Sam and load him up with plenty of misery every day and give him a regular route I cannot miss. I am sure it will become an important branch of my business because so many guys in Washington wish to know all the misery that is going on."

"Jack," I say, "why not put in another branch and hire us to give your clients the line on joy?"

"No," Jack the Hater says, "my clients in Washington, D. C., do not wish to hear any joy."

A Panel Frock Slenderizes the Figure

By Lillian Mae

Try eye-deceiving panels to make you slim, slender, young in figure! Lillian Mae creates Pattern 4034 with a center-front panel cut in-one from neck to hem and flanked by two bodice panels that imitate panels, and are in one with the girdle. Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES).—Previous to 11:29 a. m. favors financial transaction, industrial and manufacturing business and dealing in legal and educational affairs. After 11:29 a. m. favors dealings in land or with older people, affairs of art and adornment.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS).—An excellent day to put your best foot forward. The day favors consultations, financial interests, educational matters, experiments and sociability.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI).—The influences operating through 9:44 a. m. require the use of caution to avoid disagreements and friction. Between 9:44 a. m. and 9:06 p. m. favors the beginning of things that you want to culminate quickly. The evening hours favor social activities.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER).—An excellent day for dealings with the public, political matters, literary matters, dealings with publishers and contacting superiors. A good day to ask for a raise.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO).—Greater gain will be attained by sticking to routine matters today. Remain away from things that are not slightly above board and cannot stand the light of day.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO).—An excellent day to go slow in undertaking new ventures. Be cautious in travel and pay special attention to health. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3:10 p. m.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA).—The period previous to 1:30 p. m. favors beautifying the home, putting into effect any new ideas and methods. After 1:30 p. m. favors finishing up old matters and for exercising patience in all things.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO).—Monetary affairs may be difficult today. The underlying trend of the entire day is towards unwise optimism, making this an inauspicious day for new and important undertakings, plans, decisions and changes.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS).—It will be wise to keep an eye on money matters today, for the tendency is towards extravagance and misdirection. The evening hours after 9:14 p. m. suggest unusual caution in avoid sharp and severe disappointment.

Miss Hicks Weds Alfred Harrison At Macon Rites

MARIETTA, Ga., March 23.—Enlisting cordial interest throughout Georgia was the marriage of Miss Nancy Ella Hicks, of Marietta, to Alfred Carlyle Harrison, of Greenville and Athens, which took place Saturday in Macon.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's uncle, Elder D. Y. Hicks, and Mrs. Hicks was given in marriage by her brother, John Wilson Hicks Jr., and Mrs. John Wilson Hicks Jr. was first cousin of the bride, was best man. Mrs. Harrison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilson Hicks Sr., prominent land owners of Cobb county. Mr. Hicks holds many prominent civic positions, including those of the presidency of the Cobb county Farm Bureau and the newly formed county agricultural council. Mrs. Hicks likewise is a leader in women's affairs of the county and state, holding several Cobb county and state offices in nutrition and home demonstration club work.

On her maternal side, the bride is descended from the late Elder James Monroe Adams and Nancy Malcolm Adams, pioneer settlers of Newton and Walton counties. Her father's forebears include the late John Colbert Hicks, of Crawford county, and Ella McGee Hicks, of Macon.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Harrison, of Greenville. On his mother's side he is descended from the Harveys, and on his father's side from the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Harrison, of Waynesville.

Both the bride and groom are students at the University of Georgia in Athens. The bride will receive a degree in home economics in May, while the groom will obtain a diploma in agriculture. The couple will maintain an apartment in Athens for the remainder of the college year, after which Mr. Harrison will enter the armed forces of the United States as a second lieutenant.

LIEUTENANT AND MRS. MARTIN B. SCHOFIELD.

Miss Ruthanna Butters Weds Lieut. Martin B. Schofield

Miss Ruthanna Butters, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Butters, became the bride of Lieutenant Martin B. Schofield, of Oklahoma City, Okla., and San Angelo, Texas, yesterday at a fashionable ceremony taking place at All Saints' Episcopal church.

Dr. Theodore S. Will, rector of the church, officiated at noon in the presence of a representative gathering of Atlanta society and many out-of-town guests. As the guests were assembling, a musical program was presented on the organ by Joseph Ragan.

The church was beautifully decorated for the nuptials. The entrance to the chancel was marked by white columns topped with white urns filled with Easter lilies and gladioli. An aisle to the altar was formed by two families of cathedral candelabra placed amid clusters of palms. Baskets of white gladioli and lilies were arranged in front of the choir stalls. The altar vases were filled with lilies and gladioli, and pews reserved for members of the two families were marked by large clusters of white gladioli and lilies.

Acting as ushers were Joseph J. Taylor Jr., Clyde King Jr., William K. Jenkins, and Dr. George W. Fuller.

Mrs. Wright Paulk, of Milan, Tenn., the former Miss Frances Butters, was matron of honor and only attendant for the bride. She was handmaid in a model of Madonna blue silk jersey fashioned with a V-neck, bracelet-length sleeves, and a long train. The full floor-length skirt of blue chiffon was posed over blue jersey. Mrs. Paulk wore a cluster of matching blue ostrich tips in her hair and carried a bouquet of yellow glory roses and orchid sweet peas.

Mr. Butters gave his daughter in marriage and they met the groom and his best man, Lieutenant Melvin S. Brown, of San Angelo, Texas, at the altar. The bride's exotic beauty was offset by her wedding gown of ivory bridal satin fashioned along becoming empire lines. The deep yoke was of rosepoint lace, beaded in seed pearls, and the long sleeves ended in points over her hands. The long full skirt fell in graceful pleats to form a long train, which was covered by the illusion veil fashioned in three tiers. Clusters of orange blossoms were scattered over the veil and were caught to her coronet of rose point lace, the design of which was outlined in seed pearls. The bride carried a white orchid in a fan shape design, outlined with freshias, and tied with white maline. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace which was given to Mrs. Butters by Mr. Butters on their wedding day.

Mrs. Butters was a handsome figure in her formal gown of navy sheer crepe made with a white faille yoke trimmed with a matching bow. The three-quarter-length sleeves were faced with white. Her small hat was of cyclamen tulle made with a matching straw snood in a lattice design. Her flowers were cyclamen camellias. Mrs. Ethelyn Davis Schofield, of Oklahoma City, Okla., mother of the groom, was beautifully gowned in chateau crepe fashioned along tailored lines and trimmed with a single beaded ornament worn on the shoulder. Her small hat was of feathers of a lighter shade and her accessories matched. Her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony a small reception was given at the Piedmont Driving Club by Mr. and Mrs. Butters. The hosts, the bride couple, and the groom's mother formed the receiving line and stood at the entrance to the parlor of the club before a mass arrangement of palms, ferns and tall baskets filled with pastel flowers. The entrance hall of the club was decorated with palms and ferns, and the consoles were adorned with pastel flowers. In the parlor the buffet tables were adorned with spring flowers, with similar blossoms on the mantel. The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth centered with a mound of pastel-shaded flowers. Miss Frances Holliman kept the bride's book.

Lieutenant Schofield and his bride left for a wedding trip to an unannounced destination, and later will go to San Angelo, Texas, where the groom is stationed with the U. S. Army Air Corps as an instructor at Goodfellow Field. The bride traveled in a sand beige two-piece tailored suit worn with a white blouse and an off-the-face tan and brown toque. Her accessories were brown and completing her costume were purple orchids and a sable scarf.

Miss Wiggs Weds Sgt. Butler, U.S.A., In Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 23.—The marriage of Miss Marion Wiggs and Sergeant Roswell Ison Butler, U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Doyle Butler, of Atlanta, took place Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church, with Dr. James L. Fowle officiating.

The beautiful bride wore a poudre blue ensemble and her flowers were gardenias and freshias.

Miss Bessie Wiggs, maid of honor, wore a seagreen ensemble with beige accessories, and her flowers were talisman roses. Corporal Sidney Schacter, U. S. A., was best man for Sergeant Butler.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert R. Wiggs, of 4607 Brainerd road, and sister of Miss Bessie Wiggs, Bert R. Wiggs Jr., and Carl Henry Wiggs. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. J. H. Brinkley, of Murfreesboro, and Mrs. H. P. Wiggs, of Nashville. She graduated from Central High school and received her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Chattanooga. She did library work at Chattanooga public library and was librarian at the East Side Junior High school.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Butler and is a brother of Mrs. W. C. Sweeney, of Cincinnati, and Doyle Butler, of Atlanta. He is a grandson of Mrs. Annie Hardy and the late W. L. Ison, of Atlanta, and of W. T. Butler, of Atlanta. He attended Georgia Tech, and before being inducted into the Army, was a construction engineer associated in business with his father. At Fort Oglethorpe he was with the headquarters detachment.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiggs entertained at a wedding supper for the bride couple and immediate families before the bride and groom departed on their wedding trip.

Miss Miller Weds John R. Williams.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Anne Ruth Miller, daughter of Mr. J. P. Miller, of Tallapoosa, to John R. Williams, of Atlanta and Camp Gordon, which took place Saturday at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Leonidas Brown, at 794 Fall Shoals avenue. Rev. J. C. Calloway officiated. Misses present were Mrs. W. B. Thomsen, pianist; Mrs. H. R. Williams Jr., soprano, and Mrs. Don Hawkins.

The improvised altar was formed with smilax and white gladioli, and candelabra held burning white tapers. The flowers were lit by Garland Children.

Rose and Ann Williams, Jean and Jane Guthrie, ribbon bearers, dressed in yellow and blue taffeta, formed an aisle for the wedding party. Miss Mary Edenfield, the bride's only attendant, was dressed in a becoming gown of gold crepe, with brown accessories. Her corsage was of talisman roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Hubert Miller, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and Harriet Miller, who was best man. The bride wore an aqua crepe gown, fashioned with a long bodice and pleated skirt. Her hat was an original model of aqua matching the dress. She carried a white prayer book showered with white satin ribbon and valley lilies. Purple orchids formed her shoulder bouquet.

The bride's mother was gowned in a violet blue tailored dress with black accessories. Her flowers were red and white carnations. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in a jacket gown of light blue crepe with dark blue accessories. Her flowers were red and white carnations.

After the ceremony a small informal reception was given by the bride's mother and Mrs. Leonard Brown. The lace-covered table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a basket of valley lilies. The color motif was yellow and green, being carried out by the wedding cake decorations and decorating mints. Yellow jonquils surrounded the punch bowl on the table.

The wedding cake was cut by Miss Grace Bell and Mrs. Williams Bailey. Miss Manganna Tommy and Elaine Brinkley presided at the punch bowl. Miss Elizabeth Miller, sister of the bride, kept the bride's book.

After the reception, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip.

Miss Parker Weds James Robert Smith.

ROME, Ga., March 23.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker Brown announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Carolyn Parker, to James Robert Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, of Rome, formerly of Atlanta. The ceremony was performed in the post chapel at Scott field, Ill., March 15, the post chaplain officiating.

Miss Marjorie Fahy, of Rome, and Edward McKay, Roman stationed at Scott field, stood with the couple when they made their vows. Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Smith, parents of the bridegroom, and his brother, Courtland Smith, witnessed the ceremony.

The bride is the younger daughter. Her sister is Mrs. Bob Johnson, of Morristown, Tenn. Her mother is the former Miss Katherine Hannon, daughter of the late Z. F. Hannon, of Cartersville. Her paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brown, of Ansonia.

Miss Daly, Lt. Goodpasture Married in Columbia, S. C.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 23.—The marriage of Miss Mary Brenan Daly, of this city, to Lieutenant Walter Clinton Goodpasture Jr., United States Marine Corps, took place here Thursday, March 12, at 12:30 o'clock at Trinity Episcopal church, Rev. Louis C. Melcher officiated.

Palms, ferns, white gladioli and carnations effectively decorated the church. James M. Bergen, organist, furnished the wedding music.

The ushers were Taylor Standford Garnett Jr., Sidney Dwight, Benson Schoolbred and Frank Lever.

Miss Helaine Goodpasture, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, and wore a sea-green taffeta dress and carried a bouquet of lavender Dutch iris and daffodils, and her half-hat matched her dress.

The maid of honor, Miss Cecil Farrell, wore a daffodil-yellow taffeta dress with matching halo hat and carried lavender Dutch iris and daffodils.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, B. T. Daly, was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin, the full skirt extending into a graceful train at the back. Her full-length veil of bridal illusion fell from a halo cap trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white lilies, sweet peas and carnations. The bride's only ornament was a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's best man was his father, Dr. W. C. Goodpasture, of Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Daly, mother of the bride, wore a brown dress with powder-blue yoke, brown hat trimmed with blue feathers and a shoulder spray of pale-pink carnations. Mrs. Goodpasture, mother of the bridegroom, wore a fawn-brown crepe dress with a shoulder cluster of talisman roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a wedding breakfast. During the afternoon the bride and bridegroom left for their wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a navy blue and yellow ensemble with navy accessories.

Mrs. Goodpasture, a lovely and popular member of the young-r society contingent of Columbia, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Thomas Daly, of Columbia. Her mother was formerly Miss Alice Waite Schoolbred, of East-over. On her maternal side the bride is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams

Schoolbred and on her paternal side of Mrs. Owen Daly and the late Mr. Daly. Mrs. Goodpasture attended the University of South Carolina, where she was a member of the Damas club. She made her formal bow to Columbia society at the assembly here a few seasons ago, and she is a member of the Spinners' club.

Lieutenant Goodpasture is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Goodpasture, of Atlanta, Ga. His mother, before her marriage, was Miss Alice Christiansen, of Boston, Mass. On his maternal side, the bridegroom is a descendant of the Honorable Cecil Rhodes, of England, and of Sir Charles Tupper, who at one time was premier of Canada.

Lieutenant Goodpasture is a graduate of North Fulton High school and attend Purdue and Emory University. He was graduated with honors from The Citadel in 1940. He is on active duty with the Atlantic fleet.

Ex-Notre Dame Star Is Made Lieutenant, Senior Grade.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 23. (P)—Larry Mullins, for the past year backfield coach at the University of Florida, left here last night for Annapolis, Md., to begin a month's training before going on duty in the Naval Reserve in the Navy's physical training program. Mullins, a graduate of Notre Dame and a coach at Kansas, St. Benedict's, Loyola of the South, and Ambrose College before coming here, was sworn in as a lieutenant, senior grade, in Jacksonville yesterday.

The university will grant Mullins a leave of absence during his period of service.

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Baseball--Navy Style ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 23.—A stirring picture of baseball as America's most popular sporting pastime was offered at the dedication of the new Naval Air Station field in Jacksonville.

The stands and bleachers have been built to accommodate 6,000 and the field itself would do credit to a minor league team. Great live oak trees bordering the winding St. John's provide a picturesque background for the outfield.

The Navy takes its baseball seriously. A lieutenant was handling the loudspeaker system and he gave George Earnshaw's Fliers plenty of encouragement as the game progressed.

And when the Fliers rallied in the 10th to win, the lieutenant said, "Now, let's have the old Navy spirit," and the stands were a bedlam. An umpire's life wouldn't have been worth a cent if a decision against the Navy had been made at that time.

Grandstand and bleachers were packed for the Cracker game. And the "Old Man" threw out the first ball. Captain C. P. Mason, commanding officer, then stayed until the winning run was shoved across by the Fliers.

For two hours officers, aviation cadets and sailors relaxed together and had a swell time. Overhead formations of great flying boats occasionally added to the stirring picture.

'Sorry, Scoop' I like that Navy efficiency. For instance, some 15 minutes after the game had ended I was almost through with the game story when a young sailor walked up.

"I'm sorry, Scoop," he said, "but I've ordered a truck and I'll have to take that table and the chair you're sitting on."

So I finished the story up in the stands on my knees.

Commander G. B. Stockton, public relations officer, visited during the game and revealed that he is a Cracker fan of long standing.

"I used to watch Atlanta, Birmingham and New Orleans back when Nig Clark was catching for the Crackers. I visited an aunt in Atlanta in the summer time. Cicotte was pitching and Nap Rucker was breaking in at Augusta," Commander Stockton said, adding, with a grin, "that sort of gives my age away."

Old Navy Spirit No outsiders are allowed at the games in the Naval Air Station, but there wouldn't be anything but standing room if they were. The station personnel isn't required to go to the games. But try and keep the boys away. They seem to enjoy getting in the swing of "that old Navy spirit."

Roster of the Fliers is constantly changing. The boys finish their training and go elsewhere to the battlefronts of the world.

But a creditable team is maintained constantly. There is a liberal sprinkling of college stars and professional players at the station.

They don't make much money, but do they have fun!

More professional teams should schedule games with outfits like Lieutenant Earnshaw's Fliers. For a team can't help but catch that old Navy spirit. The youthful Crackers got a new slant on the game of baseball.

And I know now, for certain, that those who criticize baseball just don't know what they're talking about.

I'll not soon forget the compelling picture of the Naval Air Station's dedication of a new field, with the commander throwing the first ball from the mound as 6,000 uniformed men cheered and as, overhead, half a dozen flying boats swept low over the scene.

It was a picture of the American way of life, and you weren't human if your pulse didn't throb and there wasn't a tightening at the throat.

Manager Richards, who was secretly glad the scrapping Naval team had won the game, said, "One of those umpires looked suspiciously like a 'homer.'"

"What would you be in a similar setting?" a listener asked.

"I guess I'd be a homer, too; they really let you know they're out to win," Slug answered.

They'll carry that same spirit into battle—and the Japs will remember Pearl Harbor.

Officials Voice Opposition to Robert's Plan

Unpatriotic, Ridiculous Are Terms Applied to Movement.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Abandonment of intercollegiate football at Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia as proposed by L. W. (Chip) Robert, a member of the board of regents, appeared unlikely last night.

Following Robert's statement from Washington yesterday that he would offer a motion to suspend football at Tech and Georgia at a meeting of the board next week, cries of protest arose from officials of both schools.

A checkup with the office of the board of regents revealed that no meeting is scheduled for next week or any time in the near future.

Robert's statement indicated he would seek aid for the movement from Chancellor S. V. Sanford, who supported suspension of the sport at the start of the last war. Sanford said yesterday he would vigorously oppose any such movement.

"At a meeting of college heads in Baltimore recently, at which Army and Navy officers attended, we were told to carry on college athletic programs."

"There is no similarity between this war and the last. We are asked to carry on our sports programs this time. We were not in 1917."

Coach W. A. Alexander, of Tech, and President Harmon W. Caldwell, of Georgia, were emphatic in their opposition to the plan.

Coach Alex called the movement "unpatriotic" and said that football is being continued at both Annapolis and West Point. Tech has a game scheduled with the Navy next October 24.

"I think Mr. Robert's ideas are completely out of line with wishes of Army and Navy officials," he said.

A resolution adopted by the athletic board of control at its Athens meeting in January, in which continuance of the present athletic program at Georgia until circumstances make it "inadvisable or undesirable" was strongly endorsed, was referred to by President Caldwell.

HIS OPINION. Dr. Caldwell said, "Our opinion about intercollegiate athletics is in accord with the spirit of that resolution," adding:

"We do not believe, however, that conditions are now such as to make a discontinuance of intercollegiate athletics advisable or desirable."

"On the contrary, we feel maintenance of a sound athletic program will contribute much to furtherance of the national war effort."

"This feeling on our part is strengthened by the fact that both the Army and Navy are encouraging development of athletic training programs in the schools and training centers within their jurisdiction."

Coach Wallace Butts, of Georgia, had no comment on the matter. Neither did Governor Talmadge, who said it was entirely a matter for the board of regents.

R. B. Wilby, president of the Georgia Tech alumni association, said the proposal was "perfectly ridiculous" and Charles Nunnally, president of the Atlanta, Ga., alumni, said it was "stupid."

SEVERAL REASONS.

"Football exists for several reasons," Wilby said. "But one of the main ones is to provide revenue for other sports activities, including basketball."

"An increased intra-mural program is being developed at Georgia Tech in accordance with the government's wishes for physical training for all. And football pays that bill."

"Georgia alumni and students would readily give up football if the government decided it was hurting rather than helping our war effort," Nunnally said. "But until then, I believe football has a definite place in colleges."

"Why should Georgia and Tech quit when other colleges of the Southeastern conference are going ahead with their programs?" Wilby said he believed both Tech and Georgia alumni associations would back fights against the abandonment if "it were necessary but I don't believe it will be."

Among the members of the board of regents contacted by the Associated Press for comment was Chairman Sandy Beaver who said he would not favor suspension "until the emergency becomes much more acute."

Joe W. Jenkins, of Hartwell, said he hadn't given the idea much thought but observed, "I feel like such a resolution would be a good thing."

Regents Susie T. Moore, of Tifton, and Joe Ben Jackson, of Gray, were noncommittal, but Julian Strickland, of Valdosta, said he would like to see football continued if it did not interfere with defense efforts.

George C. Woodruff, of Columbus, another member of the board, said: "No resolution for suspension is now before the board, and in view of the national administration's attitude toward athletics and physical development, I think it would be unfortunate."

BATTLE OF BATS

TAMPA, Fla., March 23.—Joe DiMaggio has arranged a good, tough job for himself this season. This happens to be the pursuit and possible capture of Ted Williams in their annual battle of busy bats. So far the Red Sox swinger has a lead of 11 points, due largely to his 406 outburst a year ago.

Williams' three-year mark is 356 against DiMaggio's 345 for six campaigns. The Yankee hitter took a big jump in 1939, Ted's debutable year, and piled up a few additional points in 1940. But this campaign was all wiped away by Williams' terrific season at the plate in 1941.

"Williams is a hard fellow to catch," DiMaggio admitted, "and that's one of the reasons I hope to start this season in the best possible shape. That with me means legs. I want them toughened up for a fast start."

In many ways DiMaggio and Williams carry along the same fundamentals. Both put a big part of the batting burden on hands, wrists and forearms, especially on the wrists.

They have another quality in common and that's a refusal to swing at bad balls. They are not easily lured into any such fault and pitchers by now have found that out.

It might be mentioned in this connection that both will face trouble tying or beating the marks they set last year—DiMaggio's 56 consecutive hitting games and Williams' 406 average.

The Yankee star has no such fancy expectation but he still has hit batting eye adjusted on the 400 spot. He hung around 400 a big part of the season in 1939, finishing at 383 which is still pretty fair hitting, one way and another.

Williams has been moving up each season—327, 344, 406. It would surprise nobody, including Ted, if he hit 400 or better again. He is one of the star natural hitters of all time, and still is only 23 years old.

Met Golfers Vie At Forrest Hills

The Metropolitan Women Golfers will tee off Wednesday at 10 o'clock at the Forrest Hills Golf Club, near Avondale, in their second annual Easter tournament.

Easter hams will be awarded as prizes for low gross and low net in all classes. All women golfers are cordially invited to attend.

TOLEDO LOSES.

NEW YORK, March 23.—(P)—West Virginia's Mountaineers, eighth-seeded team in the National Invitation basketball tournament, turned in their second straight upset tonight to enter the finals with a 51-to-39 victory over Toledo before a crowd of 17,000 at Madison Square Garden.

Navy Launches 30-Day School For Over 200

Tharpe Among Coaches Learning 'Navy Way' at Annapolis.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 23.—(P)—It was back to school again for 200 college coaches and sports personalities who descended on the United States Naval Academy from every corner of the nation.

Recently commissioned naval reserve officers to handle the huge V-5 physical fitness program for future job fliers, they threw their civilian togas into academy lockers for the duration and commenced an intensive 30-day course in learning to look, act and think the "Navy way."

From dawn until late tonight they drifted into Annapolis. They drilled a bit, received khaki uniforms and then were lectured to night by academy officials who will direct them during training. The intensive program begins tomorrow with a gym drill shortly after sunrise.

Sam Barry, Southern California football, basketball and baseball coach, was one of the first arrivals. "Sleepy Jim" Crowley, of Fordham, was one of the last. Barry will go on active duty as athletic director of the V-5 program at St. Mary's (Cal.) College while Crowley has been assigned to the eastern school at the University of North Carolina.

Two former sports writers were in the crowd—Everett Morris, New York Herald-Tribune, and Charley Burton, sports editor of the Dallas (Texas) News.

Southern schools were represented by Larry (Moon) Mullins, Florida backfield coach and former Notre Dame star under Knute Rockne; Paul (Bear) Bryant, Vanderbilt line coach; Jim (Sweet) Lallane, former North Carolina triple threat, and Marcel (Mac) Tharpe, for 12 years an assistant at Georgia Tech.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 23.—(P)—Stanley (Frenchy) Bordagaray, utility outfielder with the New York Yankees last season, was sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League today for cash and an undisclosed player.

300 Card Rookies Head for Albany

ALBANY, Ga., March 23.—Some of the 250 to 300 rookies who hope to land places on one of the farm teams that comprise the St. Louis Cardinals' chain system will begin to arrive in Albany next Sunday for the annual tryout camp that is conducted here annually to discover talent for the various minor league teams in that system.

In addition to the simon pures who will be here for their first tryouts in organized baseball, the camp will include a number of first-rate minor league players who were enrolled on some of the farm teams last year.

Last Saturday night's handicap bowling event proved so successful that another of the same caliber will again be offered Saturday.

Bill French threw in a big game of 153 and finished with 657 for his five games, winning handsily from Sam Barnes, who finished second with 622. Joe Chambliss was third with 620.

For the women, Estelle Warrington, with a handicap of only ten pins, rolled games of 131, 127, 95, 117 and 129 to total 609 and win the first prize of $5. Sara Thomason with 589 was second and Evelyn Traber with 586 was third.

Entry Fee is $1.50 for this event and action will start at 8 p. m. at the downtown alleys. Thirty-four entrants answered the call last week and 50 are anticipated this week.

Atlanta's contingent that journeyed to Macon over the weekend to shoot at the state singles crown numbered among them W. F. Lowry, who was the eventual winner; Jack Sheriff, who finished second; Ed Pearce and Bill Berry, Nolen, Joe Chambliss, Lowry Whisenant, Columbus had Bob Edmunds and Zeke Carter. Twenty entrants in all answered the starter's whistle and a spirited race lasted throughout ten games.

I met Mr. Paine of Ascap over at Fred Waring's club the other night. I asked him why he didn't ask Hit Parade to make "The Star-Spangled Banner" its number one tune every week.

He said that's a good idea and he was going to get in touch with George Washington Hill. Our national anthem is being played more than any tune on the air and has been popular for over a century.

That "Buckle Down, Winsome" is the best marching tune I have heard in years. It isn't Gilbert and Sullivan but it will start the Mikado off on a long run.

Decatur Fives Vie Tonight in Cage 'Festival'

High School, Elks, Rinky Dinks, Faculty Perform on Final Card.

The city of Decatur will ring down the curtain on the basketball season tonight with a triple-header involving a variegated collection of teams from the vicinity. Festivities will begin at 8 o'clock at the Decatur Boys' High gym.

The best Decatur High five in many years will take on the potent Decatur Elks team in a game which will mark the final appearance of Frank (The Red) Broyles in a high school cage suit. Broyles is one of the finest athletes the school has had.

Another game will involve the high school second team and the Rinky Dinks, a kid quintet which has been winning right and left all season. Coach Joe Martin has been trying to sign the New York Celtics to play the Decatur Faculty team, he says, but since the pros have gone north, the teachers will play some other team in the other game on the night card.

Benny Hogan Again Leading Cash Winners

1940 Victor Also Sets Pace in Race for Vardon Trophy.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 23. (P)—Fred Corcoran, bureau manager of the Professional Golfers' Association, released last night his latest compiled figures, showing Ben Hogan in the lead again for high money winner and points amassed for the Vardon trophy. Hogan has been the leader in both for the last two years.

The figures included the St. Augustine pro-amateur tournament, won today by Sam Snead and Wilford Wehrle. MONEY WINNINGS: Hogan, $6,158; Sam Snead, $5,016; Lloyd Mangrum, $3,158; Chick Harbert, $2,869; Byron Nelson, $2,857; Chandler Harper, $2,875; Lawson Little, $2,401; Jimmy Thomson, $2,180; Herman Barr, $2,131; Herman Keiser, $2,059.

VARDON TROPHY POINTS: Hogan, 137; Snead, 102; Nelson, 93; Mangrum, 78; Harper, 76; Barrow, 63.

DODGERS HAPPY OVER THIS—"Dem Bums" of Brooklyn were cheered greatly yesterday when Whitlow Wyatt, their ace pitcher from Buchanan, Ga., hung his hat in his locker for the first time after ending a holdout siege Sunday by signing a contract for a reputed $17,500. Wyatt was the National League champs' most effective hurler last year, winning 22 games and dropping 10. He beat the Yankees once in the World Series, also.

Joe Medwick Trade For Newsom Hinted

Bobo Refuses To Sign Contract With Tigers, While Ducky Loses Job to Galan.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 23.—(P)—The Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 2, today amid rumors that the National League champions would send Outfielder Joe Medwick to the Motor City nine in exchange for holdout Pitcher Louis (Bobo) Newsom.

Newsom, mainstay of the Detroit staff in 1940 but winner of only 12 games while losing 20 last year, has refused to sign a contract because of a salary slash. Medwick virtually has lost his outfield berth to Augie Galan, outfielder with the Chicago Cubs last season.

Larry French, Brooklyn left-hander, subdued the Tigers with two hits in the first six innings to-day and Detroit got both of its tallies off Bob Chipman, rookie hurler, in the seventh on Pinky Higgins' towering homer after Rudy York walked.

Triples by Alex Kampouris and Pete Reiser were the big blows in the early-inning assault on Virgil (Fire) Trucks, starting Detroit hurler.

YANKS MAUL BEARS. SEBRING, Fla., March 23.—(P) After the Newark Bears, of the International League, once got over their stage-fright in playing the New York Yankees, the minor leaguers outplayed, outbatted and outpitched the world champions today. However, a six-run outburst in the first inning gave the Yankees margin to chalk up a 9-to-5 triumph.

BROWNS STOP NATS. ORLANDO, Fla., March 23.—(P) Four rookie pitchers yielded only five hits to the Washington Senators today as the St. Louis Browns won a 12-inning exhibition game, 2 to 1. The Senators' lone run came on Jim Vernon's single after two walks in the first inning. The Browns tied it in the sixth on Chet Laabs' triple and Glenn McQuillen's single and won in the 12th on an error and Harland Clift's triple.

LOOKOUTS LOSE. WINTER GARDEN, Fla., March 23.—(P)—Chattanooga's Southern Association team fell today before the Orlando Air Base Army team, score 4 to 2, with the soldiers capitalizing on the hurdling of two experienced men. Jesse Plummer, Red Sox rookie property, and Rushe, young right-hander belonging to Pittsburgh before Uncle Sam claimed him, struck out 12 men in their team's first appearance of the season. The soldiers, already formidable, have been promised the services of Hank Greenberg, of Detroit slugging fame, who will report this week in time for their game with Washington Friday.

HARDER COMES BACK. CLEARWATER, Fla., March 23.—(P)—The comeback of Mel Harder, 32-year-old pitching veteran, became official today when he was signed to a Cleveland contract. The right-hander was given his unconditional release last fall after 14 years with the Indians, but accompanied them to their training camp this spring in the hope his pitching arm had been restored to usefulness by an operation on his elbow. The soreness caused by bone chips is gone, and Harder has hurled for eight innings in two exhibition games.

CARDS SWEEP SERIES. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 23.—(P)—The St. Louis Cardinals made a clean sweep of their spring exhibition series with the Cincinnati Reds, climbing on Bucky Walters today to win the third and final game, 5 to 2. Bert Haas hit a home run for the Reds.

Jim Cox Hits Two Homers, Woodail One

Hurlers Fail Richards in Clutch; Letchas, Glock Slug Hard.

By JACK TROY.

Constitution Sports Editor. Ocala, Fla., March 23.—Despite the newly developed punch of the Crackers kids, Milwaukee's Brewers kept hammering away at Atlanta pitching to win a 10-inning slugfest, 8 to 7, today.

Shortstop Jim Cox hammered a couple of home runs for the Crackers cause, sending Atlanta ahead once more in the 10th, but Rookie Sal Walker couldn't hold the Brewers of Charley Grimm in their half.

Charlie Woodail also hit a homer today, while Charlie Letchas and Stankey scored after the Double A club on virtually even terms. They got 11 hits to the Brewers' 13. Roxie Lawson, West and Christensen divided the pitching for Milwaukee, while Earl McGowin, Elwood Lawson and Walzer worked for the Crackers.

Milwaukee drew first blood in the second when the side could have been retired on Howells' grounder, but Cox booted a perfect double play ball, loading the bases. Clarke tied to Thomassie and Stankey scored after the catch.

The Crackers pulled back on even terms in the fifth when Woodail, leading off, belted a home run over the fence in left field. McGowin retired and Lawson took over in the fifth as the Brewers once again went out in front. Howell and Clarke walked and there were two men out when Griswold singled to left, scoring Howell.

A timely double by Glock tied up the score again in the sixth. Letchas, who forced Treadway, was on first and went all the way as Glock hit for two bases in left center.

Hudson connected for his third hit, a home run, to send Milwaukee ahead again in the last half of the sixth.

The slugfest continued in merry fashion. Cox hit for four bases over the left field fence, with Woodail, who walked, on base in the seventh, putting the Crackers on top again. The score was now 4 to 3.

Lawson was the victim of a three-run spurge in the seventh. Norman Becker and Griswold put together successive singles, Norman scoring. George batted for West and walked. Then Stankey drove in Becker and Griswold.

The Crackers loaded the bases with none out but failed to score in the eighth. Letchas walked. Glock was safe on a fielder's choice when Stankey dropped Christensen's throw at second. Browne beat out an infield hit. The stage was set for Woodail fanned, Thomassie fouled out to first and Cox was thrown out.

Christensen wasn't that lucky again. The Crackers rallied and tied up the game again in the ninth. Dozier was safe on an error and the score was 7 to 6. Treadway walked. Letchas doubled to left, scoring Carlin, and Glock followed with a single to score Treadway. There was a good chance to go ahead in the game, but Brown grounded out to first and Thomassie popped up.

Cox hit his second homer to put the Crackers in front in the tenth but a Brewer rally won the game. Stankey walked and Hudson was safe on Letchas' error. Peck's single scored Stankey. Stencil walked and Clarke singled to left, scoring Hudson with the winning run.

Dublin Drug Store Damaged by Fire

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., March 23.—Fire badly damaged the stock, fixtures and building of the Claxton Drug Company here this morning, causing a loss tentatively set at $5,000.

Cause of the blaze, which broke out about 7 a. m., was not determined, but it was believed the fire started in a kitchen at the rear of the building.

Dr. M. Z. Claxton, a city alderman, is owner of the concern. The building is owned by Mrs. Alex S. Frank.

The establishment is located next to that formerly occupied by the Ritz theater, which burned several months ago.

Finding of Skeleton

RECALLS SEA TRAGEDY

DARIEN, Ga., March 23.—(P)—A Negro fisherman, gathering oysters near the southern end of Wolfe island, found a human skeleton, thus reviving memories of a 28-year-old sea tragedy.

Coroner C. C. Fishburne, made a thorough search of the mud surrounding the body and dug up a razor, flashlight, two watches and a number of Spanish coins bearing the name "Alfonso" and dated in the 1890's.

In 1914, the Spanish barge Lakafoss was wrecked off Wolfe island and the crew of 15 was lost. The only survivor of the wreck was a dog which later was sent home to Spain.
